Money Lent.
If Russia Got Really Mad.
We Still Seek Witches.
Sugar and Yeast Make Whisky.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 12

THE New York Chase National Bank is to be congratulated on making a loan of eighty million dollars to the Cuban government. Our nation lent billions to European nations, using the money to kill each other. It is fortunate that we have private bankers sufficiently intelligent and progressive to help finance a near neighbor and good friend, that will use the money constructively. It is a good loan. Cuba is an immensely rich country, and her people are honrorable.

MEXICO imitates Britain, raiding private offices of the Russian government in Mexico City, seizing papers, etc. As in the case of British raiding, Russia protests violently against the "unspeakable violation of diplomatic rights."

AT present Russia's protest is not important. But later flying machine development might make it important. Russia could resent such incidents by sending raiding parties through the air, striking at great population centers of other nations. Retaliation by the other nations would be difficult. Russia is made up chiefly of two hundred thousand villages. Bombing ten thousand of them would produce no decisive effect.

MOSCOW and Leningrad amount to little as cities, and attacking them would not mean much to Russia. But if you destroyed Paris, or London, you would destroy France, or England. And if you destroyed New York, you would convince some boyish bankers that their foolish loans to the czar were not as important as they thought.

MODERNS smile, reading of the great Alexander travelling over desert wastes to consult a soothsayer, and never suspecting that the lady had been told, in advance, what the conqueror wanted her to say. But desire to consult the future, through any kind of witch, from Endor to Los Angeles, a craving for the impossible still exists among us.

MRS. MARY STEWART, who lives here, says she gave Mrs. Blackburn $25,000 to help her carry on the work of "The Divine Order of the Royal Arms of the Great Eleven."

And Clifford Dabney gave $45,000 to the same worthy cause. Mrs. Blackburn you must know has in her possession the "sixth seal." When that is broken, everything will be revealed. Who would not pay $45,000 or forty-five million dollars, to know everything, assuming that he would know what it was all about when he heard it.

JEANS, the astronomer, says if the universe could be explained to us, accurately, it would be more incomprehensible to us than it is now, as though you explained differential calculus to a hoptoad.

MR. DABNEY surely got his $45,000 worth. It is testified that thanks to Mrs. Blackburn he saw wonderful visions, including one of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy walking down Broadway. And he saw two Disciples and some angels on the same street. The witness did not say whether it was Broadway, New York, or Broadway, Los Angeles, but it was probably the latter. Too many speakeasies near Broadway, N. Y.

THE federal grand jury, at Springfield, Ill., accuses two great corporations of conspiring with bootleggers to break the law. Bootleg whisky calls for yeast and sugar. One of the two corporations makes sugar, the other makes yeast—that is their business, and it is legal. They sell it to any one that will buy. The law does not say that it is their business to make sure that the yeast or sugar will not be used to make alcohol.

THIS emphasizes the difficulty of prohibition enforcement. The laws of chemistry and of nature work to produce alcohol, even manufacturing it inside the body of loyal prohibitionists, after he has swallowed his sugar in an innocent, non-alcoholic form.

IF, however, the corporations have knowingly supplied bootleggers, and wilfully connived at the breaking of the law, prohibition enforcement may reach them, and should do so.

FAILURE to reach an agreement concerning the Boulder Dam improvement shows the need of a change in control of any water power that possesses national importance. The various states interested in the Colorado River act in good faith, as do their congressmen, EACH seeking to protect its citizens' interest. Meanwhile, the water and power go to waste, unused.

IT is as though a family of children, inheriting a great estate, should let it lie idle, indefinitely, through failure to agree on a division. The nation is interested, and unselfishly. And the nation should settle all power and water disputes, when states fail to agree after a seasonable time. The settlement might not be perfect, but it would put an end to foolish waste.

Charges Shock Congressmen As Guns of Liberals Boom At Hearing Urging Repeal

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Charges of wholesale corruption of federal and state officials as a result of prohibition, so sweeping that members of the House Judiciary Committee plainly were shocked, were made before the committee today by Walter W. Liggett, magazine writer.

He was presented as the first of a long list of witnesses anti-prohibition organizations have promised to bring before the committee to support proposals for repeal or amendment of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The committee, which framed the Volstead act, sat by for three hours as it opened its hearings—the first hearings on repeal in the 10 years of prohibition—and heard the dry law assailed not only by the one witness of the day, but by his own 79-year-old chairman, Congressman George S. Graham, of Philadelphia.

MICHIGAN ORGY DESCRIBED

Declaring he could prove every statement made, Liggett detailed amazing stories of corruption and disregard of prohibition in Boston, Detroit, Washington and the states of Kansas and Minnesota.

Perhaps the highlight of his testimony was his account of an all-

Rum-Plot Jury Acquits Berkey And 14 Others

Judge John A. Berkey, of Somerset County, is not guilty of conspiring to violate the liquor laws, a jury in Federal Court decreed today.

The same jury acquitted the 14 other Somerset County politicians, alleged bootleggers and alleged slot machine operators who stood trial with Berkey.

A verdict was reached after 75 minutes of discussion.

A noisy demonstration of cheers in the corridors from sympathizers of the defendants was heard in the courtroom as the verdict was announced.

Corridor gossip had it that two ballots were taken. The first for acquittal for all but one defendant (not Judge Berkey) and the second for general acquittal.

Retiring yesterday at 4:15 p. m., the jurors had agreed at 5:30 o'clock and returned a sealed verdict, which was opened before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker today.

'PROTECTION' CHARGED

The government charged Berkey, whose term as judge expired last month, with engineering the sale of "protection" to bootleggers and slot machine operators for campaign funds.

The star witness was Claude A. M. Welsh, former political lieutenant of Berkey, who said he was a "go-between" for the judge and bootleggers.

The other defendants were: Ed Darr, Somerset County detective; Victor Gleasner, deputy constable; Harry S. Sellers, constable; John E. Custer, former Somerset recorder and president of Hooversville First National Bank; Foster Ziegler, James McIntyre, John Griffith, John Sherr-

4 IMPERILED BY ACID FUMES

Gases Forced in Through Hose, Holes Cut in House; Police Sifting Mystery

When Mrs. Mabel Millis, 45, went to the kitchen of her home at 7720 Tuscarora street, Wilkinsburg, today to prepare breakfast for her husband and two sons, she discovered the room full of fumes.

Her eyes smarted—she felt herself choking.

Mrs. Millis called to her husband, Townsend Millis, 45.

This is what he found:

Two holes drilled through the kitchen door. A two-gallon crock containing an acid on the porch. Two lines of hose, running from the crock, inserted in the holes.

He found a second set of similar apparatus outside a dining room window. Holes had been drilled through a window sash.

Police are saving the acid for analysis. It passes off a sweet, sickening odor.

Millis, a pattern maker for Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, could advance no reason why anybody should have designs on him or members of his family. Walter Millis, 21, is employed by Station KDKA, and Robert Millis, 14, is a high school student.

TWO SAVED IN EAST END FROM MOB

Mounted Patrolmen Punched And Kicked Dispersing Crowd at P. R. R. Station

Two mounted patrolmen were beaten and several cab employes reported injured in East Liberty today as rioting and stoning held sway in the taxicab strike.

A dozen strike sympathizers swarmed around Patrolman James Gallagher as he leaped from his horse at the Broad street entrance of the East Liberty Station, Pennsylvania Railroad, to disperse a crowd of more than 100 men assembled near four Green cabs.

Some of the group struck Gallagher with their fists while others kicked him, witnesses said.

RESERVES ROUT CROWD

Gallagher's fellow officer, William Divens, hastening to his aid, was also set upon by the mob and severely beaten.

Additional police from the East End station, answering a riot call, scattered the crowd, which had stood by without making any effort to aid the officers. Divens arrested one man who was lodged in No. 6 station.

A Green cab, manned by a guard and driver, was stoned in front of 5964 Ellsworth avenue, police reported. One of the cab men, James McHenry, 25, of 1033 North avenue, Wilkinsburg, was removed to Pittsburgh Hospital and later to West Penn Hospital, suffering from lacerations of the head and face from shattered glass of the windshield. Residents of the neighborhood denied rumors that shots had been fired.

TAXI STONED

One of a convoy of seven cabs taking a girl passenger from East Liberty Station to her destination in Oakland was stoned at Center and South Highland avenues. Windows of the cab were broken, but no one was reported injured.

Several cabs were reported attacked in Bigelow boulevard. One driver was reported to have abandoned his machine and fled.

Numerous free lance cabs, manned with special guards, toured the streets late today as the new outbreak of violence grew more menacing.

A driver and guard on a Yellow cab were reported threatened by a crowd of strike sympathizers at Wylie and Sixth avenues after the cab had been stoned.

Cabs also were reported to have been stoned at Sixth avenue and Smithfield street and at Sixth avenue and Wood street, although no serious damage was reported.

ASSAIL HUGHES ON TRUSTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—A Democratic-Insurgent coalition, greatly outnumbered, assailed the economic views of Charles Evans Hughes in the Senate today in a vain hope of preventing his confirmation as chief justice of the United States.

Senator Dill (Dem.), of Washington, opened the third day's debate against Hughes by charging his confirmation would help to tax the American people "hundreds of millions of dollars" because of his economic views on the valuation of public utilities.

RANKS OF DEFEATED

Dill protested against the appointment of chief justices from the ranks of men "defeated for the presidency."

He first called attention to Lincoln's birthday anniversary.

"What a coincidence the Senate spends this anniversary of the greatest champion of human rights since Christ walked upon the earth to debate the propriety of confirming as chief justice

MAN, 68, GIVEN LIFE IN MURDER

A 68-year-old man was found guilty of murder in the first degree and sentenced to imprisonment for the rest of his life by a jury in Criminal Court today.

He was Herman Kummer, of Tarentum, convicted of shooting to death William Hiteshue, 73.

Kummer admitted firing the fatal shots when he saw Hiteshue walking with 62-year-old Mrs. Abbie Roll, of Tarentum, who had married Kummer without divorcing her second husband.

The elderly defendant slumped in his chair in court when the verdict was read. His two sons and a daughter wept softly.

Mrs. Roll, whose testimony was considered the most damaging, was not in court.

Serving of sentence was arrested when Kummer's counsel, Ralph H. Smith, filed notice that he would seek a new trial.

Kummer testified that Hiteshue laughed at him and reached into his pocket as if for a weapon.

"I fired three shots that I thought would go into the air," Kummer said in defense.

Ducks in River Presage Early Spring

Robins being as commonplace as they are, two ducks were offered today as the sure-shot bet on spring's early arrival.

A pair of mallards were reported this morning from the tip of Neville Island, an employe of "the water works" recording that they flapped around in the Ohio River there for an hour before flying off.

They were about three weeks early, usually making their first appearance during the first week in March.

FEAR RENEWED JOBLESS RIOTS

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 12.—(AP.)—Possibility of further rioting by unemployed men and women here today as circulars were distributed calling a mass "protest" meeting to be held at 5:30 p. m., in public square and declaring that yesterday's riot of 1,200 persons "will not stop the workers from fighting."

Safety Director Edwin D. Barry said, however, there would be no police interference at the meeting today and added, "I do not anticipate any trouble."

In yesterday's riot the crowd of unemployed pitted fists and knives against police night sticks in front of City Hall. Some woman is said to have precipitated the battle by crying out, "The police are clubbing us." Her words started the crowd in a rush against the police guards who were forced to swing their clubs and fight desperately in self defense.

The crowd had collected around City Hall to appeal to a council committee for "work, wages, or relief."

Sunday Movie Shows Win In Wheeling Crusade

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 12.—Efforts to enforce the Sunday 'Blue Laws' here, under the guise of violation of labor laws, fell flat when the Ohio County grand jury refused to return the bills against 112 persons held under bond after being arrested for operating moving picture theaters on Sunday.

Managers and camera operators of seven Wheeling theaters had been arrested each Sunday since December 22 when the theaters were first opened on the Sabbath and had been charged each time with violating the Sunday labor laws. In all instances, the theater officials each posted $500 when arraigned and the performances were uninterrupted.

Theaters involved were the Liberty, Colonial, Rex, Victoria, Court, Virginia and Capitol.

Archabbot Ill, Condition Critical

The Rt. Rev. Aurelius Stehle, O. S. B., Archabbot of St. Vincent Arch Abbey at Beatly, Pa., was reported to be still in a critical condition at St. Francis Hospital today.

The Archabbot has been a patient at St. Francis Hospital since January 23, suffering from a complication of diseases, together with a complete breakdown.

Wanted: Someone to Bathe In New City Showers

The East North Side may have needed a swimming pool, but park authorities are beginning to believe that it does not need or its residents do not think it needs free bath house facilities.

Ten days ago 13 shower baths in the new bath house at the head of Anderson street in East Park were opened to the public.

Supt. Edward Rieck directed the regulation of the heat of the water to just the right temperature, placed an ample supply of soap within easy reach and provided scores of snowy white towels.

He expected a big rush of business. But he waited from noon until 8 p. m. and not a person appeared.

And so day after day, Saturday included, Supt. Rieck has waited for his first customer, as he ponders over various plans to popularize what he considers the best little bath house in the world. His one consolation is his assurance from the boys of the neighborhood that the swimming pool, an outdoor feature of the bath house, will be well patronized when it opens early in the summer.

night debauch in Detroit on November 5 1929 at which he said the Governor of Michigan the Detroit chief of police who has since been removed and four judges were present. The liquor he said was provided by a well-known gambler, and nude girls danced.

He described in detail conditions in many other parts of the country, from Boston to Wichita, Kan.

In the latter town, incidentally he said one of the very classiest roadhouses was to be found comparing favorably with those in New York.

PROOF OF CHARGES

He "named names" in many instances and promised to furnish the committee with other names on demand. Asked if he stood ready to furnish proof of his assertions, he remarked that he did, but expressed doubt that such proofs would ever be called for because he "had the facts."

Chairman Graham at the outset of the session which was one punctuated frequently by applause from spectators, said the Eighteenth Amendment and the enforment law had been tested for 10 years without satisfactory results."

The more than 200 men and women gathered in the House caucus room listened intently to the Pennsylvanian. Nearly half of the audience was composed of women. Among them were Miss M. Louise Gross and Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, leaders in the fight on the dry act.

Graham was interrupted by applause when he said that no law can be enforced that is destructive of right and individual liberty.

DRYS MAKE PROTEST

The chairman said that both sides would be given equal opportunity to present their views. The hearings, he said, might not accomplish anything, but they would give an opportunity to the conscientious opponents of prohibition for a public hearing.

Dry members of the committee immediately sought to limit the time of each witness, but after a squabble, Graham said the question would be settled later and ordered the hearing to proceed.

Liggett then took the stand to reveal the results of his seven-month study of prohibition.

"Gentlemen, there are 700 speakeasies in Washington operating day and night," he said.

CAPITAL RUM SALES

"There are 4,000 bootleggers in the national capital. I think I can prove that 1,600,000 gallons of liquor are consumed each year here. There are 6,000,000 gallons of home brew made. I proved this by checking up on the sales of wholesale groceries and other stores.

"Arrests for drunkenness are increasing as well as other crimes in Washington. Arrests for drunkenness alone have trebled since prohibition."

Liggett then turned to Boston, where he recently conducted investigations. He said:

"Before prohibition there were 1,000 open saloons in Boston. Now there are 4,000 open speakeasies and 15,000 purveyors of liquor. They carry on with police corruption. This corruption has touched higher-ups, even an ex-governor, an ex-secretary of a governor and a commissioner of safety who have sold confiscated booze. I presented these facts to a grand jury and I think the grand jury will return indictments."

KANSAS "ARIDITY" HIT

Turning to Kansas, he said: "There isn't a town in Kansas where I cannot get a drink of liquor, and good liquor at that, in 15 minutes."

He said he found bootleggers operating in 16 counties in Kansas. Wichita, he said, is wide open.

"I visited one of the classiest roadhouses I ever saw outside Wichita where there was open gambling and drinking," he said.

Five minutes after he went into the best hotel in Topeka, he was offered a pint of liquor by a bell boy, he testified.

He estimated that 6,000,000 gallons of hard liquor are consumed in Kansas each year alone. A checking up with railroad officials showed that 600,000 gallons of homebrew are drunk each year in Tokeka, he said.

Liggett then startled the committee with his story of the Detroit road house party.

DETROIT GANG RULE

"Mass production of crime is in its fullest flower in Detroit," he said. "The city is in the grip of racketeers, there is police corruption and graft by politicians. There were 20,000 speakeasies in Detroit two years ago."

Representative Michener (Rep.) of Michigan, interrupted to say that since that time a new mayor has been elected.

"I will say," added Liggett, "that Detroit police are not as corrupt as in many other cities."

Liggett also assailed prohibition enforcement where Andrew Volstead, author of the national prohibition act, is legal adviser of the prohibition administrator. He declared there was more drinking in Minnesota than before prohibition.

There are, he added, about 300 "beer flats" in Minneapolis, where girls entertain with drinking parties, he said.

HIGH SCHOOL DEBAUCHES

He told the committee that sale of liquor had solved the farm problem for many Minnesota farmers.

High school boys and girls, he said, have driven from Minneapolis to a "beer farm" 50 miles away for debauches.

"I believe that if you have 10 years more of prohibition this country will be ruled by underworld rats and crooked politicians," he said. "Liquor is the basis of all crime in this country."

TWO ORDERED ACQUITTED

There were two other defendants—Emmet Buckman, assistant county detective, and Ed Sheeler, alleged bootlegger—but their acquittal by the jury was merely a formality, for Judge Schoonmaker had given instructions to that effect, holding that the government had not proved the two defendants members of a conspiracy.

Berkey's defense was "political persecution." He not only denied all the charges, but insisted that the prosecution was a veiled attempt to ruin his plans to run for the State Senate.

DEMOCRAT WINS COOLIDGE TOWN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The election of William J. Granfield, Democrat, as representative in the normally Republican second district of Massachusetts yesterday was called to the attention of the Senate today by Senator Walsh (Dem.) of Massachusetts.

"I think the election in this district," he told the Senate, "revealed the voice of the people protesting against the indifferent leadership of the administration toward the pressing economic problems of today."

The Democratic leader in the House, Representative Garner of Texas, said the election was an indication of what was going to happen in November. Garner also attacked the administration for what he termed its leaderless policies.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—(INS.)—Three American vessels, belonging to the Standard Oil Company, were fired upon during the past week by bandits near Temple Hill, 250 miles above Hankow, the American consul there reported to the State Department today. He said there were no casualties, but he had protested to the authorities that American vessels be afforded adequate protection.

Accused of ripping Patrolman Howard Feidler's coat during an argument last night, James Chick, 35; his sister-in-law, Esther Bosh, of 85 Elm street, and Wilbert Stewart, 25, of 145 Elm street, all Negroes, were fined in Morals Court today. The men paid $25 each and the woman $5. The men also agreed to pay for the uniform, police said.

G. O. P. LEADERS HERE GIRD FOR STATE FIGHT

Malone, Martin Chiefs Hope To Stage 'Comeback;' Mackrell to Back Vare

Allegheny County is likely to be one of the hottest sectors in the coming battle for Governor and United States senator.

Supporters of Councilman James F. Malone and Judge Richard W. Martin, defeated at the last municipal primary, are hoping to recoup their political losses by state alliances in the May battle.

The leaders of all factions are maintaining silence until the rival slates definitely are announced. It is probable however, that the fight will see Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell and others active in the Vare for Senator and Francis Shunk Brown for Governor.

HOW MELLON STANDS

W. L. Mellon has declined to state whom he favors for Governor. Men close to him, say he is inclined to Samuel S. Lewis, of York. Politicians here today were certain that Lewis would not have announced without consulting Senator Joseph R. Grundy and regarded a Grundy-Lewis slate, backed by the Mellons, as a probability.

Just how effective the Mellon influence in favor of such a slate would be with the Allegheny County leaders is a matter of guesswork now. The fact that W. L. Mellon remained neutral in the mayoralty campaign has given many ward chairman the feeling, publicly expressed, that they owe him no political debts and are free to oppose his wishes if they desire. The attitude of Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, who was advocating James J. Davis for Governor, remains unknown.

As the situation stands today two candidates for Governor—Lewis and Brown—and two candidates for Senator—Grundy and Vare—are avowed candidates. Gifford Pinchot is expected to enter the gubernatorial contest.

WOODWARD FACES FIGHT

There also are two candidates for secretary of internal affairs—James F. Woodward, of McKeesport, incumbent, and Frederic A. Godcharles, state librarian. Two Allegheny Countians have been mentioned for lieutenant governor—Senator Frank J. Harris, of Crafton, and Controller Robert G. Woodside. Both the Vare-Brown and the Grundy-Lewis slates probably will look west of the mountains for lieutenant governor timber.

The conferences held the past two days in Washington and Pittsburgh probably were without result as far as the aim of reaching a general agreement is concerned. There are indications, however, that an arrangement is partially completed for a slate to oppose the Vare-Brown combination. Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon is said to be anxious to avoid a tangle, but even his influence in 1926 was powerless to stop a battle. The same bids fair to be true this year, according to reports from the East.

Thirty-five members of the Pennsylvania congressional delegation and Senator Grundy today completed the execution of nominating papers which, under the state law, can be placed in circulation one week from today. Col. L. H. Waters, of Scranton, did not execute papers, having announced his intention of retiring.

Gov. Fisher, returning to his desk in Harrisburg today, declared that the Washington conferees did not know of the Brown and Lewis announcements until notified by the newspapers. He expressed the opinion that the entrance of the two men constituted a new element in an already complex situation.

PORTER'S VIEWS ON DRUGS HEARD

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Congressman Stephen G. Porter, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and sponsor of two bills for control of narcotic sales and treatment of addicts, testified as an expert today before the federal grand jury investigating the drug traffic in New York.

He appeared at the invitation of United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle.

Before going into the grand jury room, Mr. Porter told newspapermen that "all our domestic laws for suppression and rehabilitation of addicts are palliated because every student of the subject reaches the same conclusion—that the drug must be controlled at the source."

"When once the drugs are produced," he said, "they ultimately reach the consumer. The bulk is so small, rendering detection very difficult, and the profit so enormous that traffic, once started, works efficiently."

the greatest champion of property rights of our time!" said Dill. "Mr. Hughes believes in the doctrine that property rights are supreme and while it makes him all the more effective, to me it makes him all the more objectionable."

He insisted the Senate had a right to Judge Hughes' economic views.

"The views of Mr. Hughes are just as important as his legal ability," Dill added. "Since the Supreme Court, as part of its jurisdiction, has seen fit to go into the question of aluation of public utilities, we have a right here to look into the economic views of Mr. Hughes. It is our duty, because the Supreme Court, by writing into the law of the land its views, has enabled corporations to pick the pockets of men and women of America of hundreds of millions of dollars in higher fares and higher rates.

LIVING COST

"The increase in cost of living can be directly traced in some instances to the decisions of the Supreme Court."

Referring to the attack on Hughes made yesterday by Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, Senator Dill said: "I couldn't help thinking how much the Senator from Idaho helped to bring about this appointment when he marched up and down the land calling for the election of the man who appointed Mr. Hughes."

Dill warned that unless the people get better treatment from the court, "there will be a revolution—not of bullets but of ballots."

Senator Brookhart (Rep.), of Iowa, joined in the debate, protesting the confirmation of Hughes.

The Iowan prefaced his remarks by declaring that the Supreme Court was now divided into two political parties, "one the progressive and the other the reactionary." The Hughes confirmation, he charged, would champion the right of the interests to confiscate property.

"I think Mr. Hughes the most typical of the element of those who confiscate labor and the earnings of the people of the

London Conference Selects Committee to Draw Up 'Restriction' Treaty

By HARRY R. FLORY
International News Service

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Great Britain has no intention of scrapping H. M. S. Rodney, pride of the British fleet and most powerful warship on the seas, First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander told the House of Commons today.

The conference appointed a drafting committee of experts to formulate yesterday's American and French resolutions for embodiment into a treaty to be signed in London.

Alexander's statement was made in answer to a question from a member of the House, who referred to the demand of United States Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, that the Rodney be scrapped in order to bring about parity in capital ships between Britain and America.

FLURRY IN BRITAIN

That Senator Borah's suggestion caused a considerable flurry in this country was evidenced by the parliamentary question, which was introduced at "question time" in the House soon after the body met this afternoon.

Alexander added that neither would Britain consent to scrap the Nelson, another new battleship of the Rodney type. He made no elaboration on his answer, merely stating flatly that destruction of these two gigantic superdreadnaughts had no place whatever on the British disarmament program.

Meanwhile, delegates to the five-power naval disarmament conference continued their private conversations, devoting considerable study to tonnage figures in the hope of bringing about definite action on auxiliary craft in the near future.

SUBMARINE AGREEMENT

Now that the delegates are in virtual agreement that submarines shall be "humanized" to the extent that they will be regulated in their actions against merchant vessels by the same standards that govern other classes of warships, the delegates are preparing to put forward their various auxiliary needs in actual tonnage figures.

The first committee of the conference, according to Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, will shortly be able to announce a definite agreement on the question of global and categorical limitation. When this problem has been settled, the delegates will begin actual work on limiting their auxiliary fleets.

Japanese Delegate Meets Reed on Naval Ratio

LONDON, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Tsuneo Matsudira, Japanese ambassador to Great Britain and member of the Japanese naval delegation, called on Senator David A. Reed at American naval headquarters late today.

It was expected that the Japanese delegate would present a written reply to Secretary Stimson's proposals to Japan last week that Japan accept a ratio of 60 per cent in heavy cruisers. The Japanese claim has been for 70 per cent and it was understood that this figure would still be insisted upon in today's Japanese communication. In that event, further conversations will be necessary.

United States and I will not vote for his confirmation," he said.

PATROLMAN THREATENING MENACING ADVANCERS AS ALL CLEVELAND RESERVES BATTLED TO DISPERSE CROWD OF 1,200

Served Many Notables, Head Waiter Here Dies

Frank Greene, captain of waiters at the Fort Pitt Hotel and a leader in Negro affairs in Pittsburgh, who was known to nearly every prominent man in the city and among many notables throughout the country, died today at his home in Webster avenue.

Before going to the Ft. Pitt 15 years ago, he had been employed in the old-time Smithfield street restaurant of Matt Weiss.

Henry Ford, Thomas A. Edison, John Philip Sousa, Josephus Daniels, Will Rogers, Gov. John S. Fisher, Senator Joseph R. Grundy, Otis Skinner and Judge Kenesaw M. Landis are a few of the nation's distinguished men who knew "Captain" Greene personally and always called for him when they were served here.

The late William Jennings Bryan was his particular friend and on occasions when the Commoner stopped at the Ft. Pitt, Greene detached himself from all other duties and gave his undivided attention to that famous guest.

"Greene was a loyal and faithful employe," said Manager W. F. Morris, of the Ft. Pitt. "His wide acquaintance was the result of his willingness to serve and in putting his whole heart in his task of making people comfortable."

N. Y. Dry Cleanup Spreads To Hip Flask Toters

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(INS.)—A new feature in prohibition enforcement—arrest and prosecution of the possessors of liquor in a public place—was announced today by Prohibition Administrator Campbell, as he continued a campaign to mop up New York City.

Announcement that agents would arrest any person possessing liquor in a hotel, cafe or night club followed a raid last night on the Cornish Arms Hotel and a well-known cafe. The arrests were made and a small amount of liquor seized. The raid was the second in two days against hotels padlocking of which will be sought.

Bellboys, waiters and alleged bootleggers to date have been arrested, guests not being disturbed.

Campbell also warned cafes and night clubs not to serve ginger ale and "accessories, such as glasses and ice, to persons carrying their own liquor.

A systematic raiding of Broadway's night clubs, hotels and cafes was predicted.

TUBES SAFE FROM PERIL OF HULK

Two Killed, $3,000,000 Loss Caused by Blasts at Pier; Stern Rests on River Bed

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(AP.)—After a battle of nearly 24 hours, firemen today finally extinguished the fire which wrecked the North German Lloyd liner Muenchen as she lay at her pier in the Hudson River, causing damage estimated at more than $3,000,000 and taking a toll of two lives.

The blaze had been under control for hours but the flames continued to lick about the Muenchen's superstructure even after her stern sank into the mud.

Firemen, pouring tons of water into the burning hull, prevented the flames from reaching the forward holds and cargoes of highly inflammable materials which might have endangered the lives of firemen, wrecked the pier and spread to the waterfront.

The deck and engine crews of the Muenchen went aboard for a preliminary survey after the firemen retired, but they were unable, because of the flooded holds, to search for the body of Gustav Francke, ship's third electrician, believed to have been burned to death in the fire.

HULL THOUGHT INTACT

Capt. Frodore Drechsel, the liner's marine superintendent, after a brief examination, said he believed the liner's hull remained intact, despite a series of explosions which wrecked the interior. This cannot be determined, however, until a diver goes down to inspect the submerged stern of the ship.

With the vessel listing to port and resting lightly against the pilings, Capt. Drechsel said he did not believe there was any danger of the Muenchen keeling over and damaging the pier.

It would take two days to make a complete survey of the ship, he said, sound her plates and check up the damage, but he felt confident the ship could be raised and reconditioned.

TUBE REOPENED

The uptown Hudson River tube, through which the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company operates Sunday trains between New York and Hoboken and Jersey City, N. J., was reopened for traffic at 6 o'clock this morning, in time to accomodate the morning rush of commuters to New York.

The tube had been closed shortly after 1 p. m. yesterday as a precautionary measure, as the burning ship rested in the mud 30 feet above the top of the tunnel and officials feared another heavy explosion aboard the ship might damage the tube. Transit officials this morning gave permission to resume service after an inspection disclosed that the tube had not been damaged.

STONE, HEALED, BACK IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(AP.)—Fred Stone, a favorite theater clown for 35 years, came back to the New York stage last night and resumed a career interrupted 18 months ago when he crashed with his airplane into a beet patch and fractured both of his 55-year-old legs.

The toes he thought would never tap again beat a lively rhythm to his favorite dancing tune, "Turkey in the Straw," and their nimble tattoo was echoed in the applause of a notable audience gathered to welcome Stone back to the footlights.

Fred even accomplished a few agile handsprings, and after he had shown the audience that his feet and ankles were as active as ever he did a crutch dance, which he said he taught himself during his months of helpless recuperation from the airplane crack-up.

His new musical comedy, "Ripples," contained not only himself, Mrs. Stone and their daughter Dorothy, but another daughter, Paula, who chose the occasion for her stage debut and kept pace with the dancing of her father and sister. The youngest daughter, Carol, will join her family on the stage next season.

FIREMEN POURING WATER INTO VESSEL FROM PROTECTION OF THE COVERED DOCK

IRENE TO BUILD NEW DOG HAVEN

LAKE FOREST, Ill., Feb. 12.—(AP.)—The 83 dogs burned to death when fire destroyed Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin's dog refuge, "Orphans of the Storm," yesterday, did not die in vain.

Mrs. McLaughlin announced today that a new and even better refuge for homeless dogs would replace the $10,000 kennels that burned. She furthermore declared that she would demand a thorough investigation by the fire marshal's office and would press prosecution if it were found the fire was of incendiary origin, as she believes.

The theory of incendiarism was borne out, she said, not only by the nature of the fire itself, starting as it did in the early morning hours, but by the fact that telephone wires leading from the keeper's dwelling were cut, preventing the summoning of firemen.

There have been several complaints to the Lake County prosecutor recently against the refuge which the complaints describe as a nuisance.

The barking of the Keeper's own dog, Bum, raised the first alarm. The keeper, Tom Webster, released 40 dogs while his wife drove a truck several miles to summon aid, which arrived too late to be of value.

GILBERT DOES 'FADE OUT'

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 12.—(INS.)—With John Gilbert checked out of his hotel at Palm Springs and presumably on his way home, Hollywood today was awaiting news of a possible second round of his fight with Jim Tully.

Gilbert went to Palm Springs for a rest following a fist fight with Tully in a Hollywood restaurant.

Today he was reported to have left the hotel without revealing his destination. At the Gilbert home in Beverly Hills servants said Gilbert and his wife, Ina Claire, were not expected to return until next week.

Tully again declined to add any further statements to his comments of yesterday.

"I did just what any man would have done if another had rushed across the room at him," Tully said. "I simply got up and knocked him down."

The battle between Gilbert and Tully is said to have been occasioned by an article the latter wrote about the motion picture star two years ago.

$589,383 TAX REFUND WON

A refund of $589,383.95 by the government to the Diamond Alkali Company of Pittsburgh was directed in an opinion handed down by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson in an action brought by the company to recover $1,498,323.70 in income and excess profit taxes paid for the years 1916 to 1918, inclusive and for 1920. The sum ordered refunded included interest from the date of payments.

The suit was brought against D. B. Heiner, collector of internal revenue, and C. G. Lewellyn, former collector, in the Pittsburgh district. Arguments were made before the court in January, 1929. The alkali company was represented by Attorney John W. Davis of New York, Democratic nominee for president in 1924, and a large array of other counsel. The government was represented by Attorney John A. McCann, Pittsburgh, representative of general counsel, Bureau of Internal Revenue.

The alkali company averted collections of taxes after the statute of limitations intervened, that the government allowed insufficient depreciation on its plants, and that there were insufficient deductions for amortization of war facilities.

Man Shoots Wife, Cuts Sons, Self

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—(INS.)—George Honcharevich, 43, shot and probably fatally wounded his wife, Katherine, here today, slashed his own throat with a razor and slashed the wrists of his sons, Peter, 15, and George, 9, according to police.

At a hospital physicians said the father and mother would probably die. The reason for Honcharevich's actions, police said, was despondency because he was out of work.

Tour Closes Gas Association Meet

A tour of inspection to the leading industrial customers in Pittsburgh yesterday afternoon ended the conference of the First Natural Gas Regional Sales Association in session Monday and yesterday in the Schenley Hotel. Speakers at the day's sessions were George L. Scofield, of Buffalo, V. L. Black, of Pittsburgh, A. J. Peters, of New York, and F. H. Stone, of Pittsburgh.

5 French Officers Killed in Revolt

HANOI, French Indo-China, Feb. 12.—(AP.)—Five French officers were killed, five were wounded, five Annamite troopers were killed and six wounded in a mutiny of native riflemen at Yenbay, 90 miles from here. Revolutionary organizations have been active in Indo-China for several months.

PLEADS GUILTY IN SLAYING

After all the testimony had been heard, William H. Sled, young Negro on trial in Criminal Court for the murder of Edward J. Kretz, Sr., Wylie avenue druggist, changed his plea from not guilty to guilty today.

This confession leaves William Walker, Negro, as the sole defendant.

A third Negro, Martin Avery, 23, had pleaded guilty before the trial started, although on the stand for the defense he repudiated a confession which named both Walker and Sled as his accomplices.

Avery has admitted that he fired the shot which killed Kretz during a holdup of the store.

Following Sled's plea today the lawyers began their closing arguments.

Loses $100, Kills Self, 3 Children

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(AP.)—Because she lost $100 her husband had given her to meet a mortgage payment on their home, Mrs. Martha Widauer, 34, killed herself and three children with gas.

The bodies were discovered in the kitchen of the home in Queens by the husband, Oscar Widauer, upon his return from work.

The children were aged 10, 7 and 4 years.

Whole Nation Extols Lincoln On Birthday

A nation slowed its pace today to remember Abraham Lincoln on this, the one hundred twenty-first anniversary of his birth.

School children recited memorized tribute to him. In banquet halls adults heard glib orators describe his deeds.

The banks and stock market were closed and the courts were idle. In many corners bent veterans of 1865 told once more the story of the Civil War.

In Springfield, Ill., where Lincoln sleeps, there were found three short verses which he penned in the autographed books of two daughters of an innkeeper.

VETERAN'S TRIBUTE

In Los Angeles Charles C. Stevenson, 86, retired alone to his study to play on a mellowed violin Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean. He had played the same tune at one of the Lincoln-Douglas debates.

In Clinton, Iowa, Daniel Winget, publisher, smiled over a faded note. "Hadn't we better spank this drummer boy and send him back home to Leavenworth?"

Lincoln had written that to his secretary of war, Stanton, after a scared boy of 14, one Dannie Winget, had edged his way into the White House to ask the President to let him fight for the Union.

In Reading, Pa., there was a deeper reverence in the Lincoln orations because it was in Berks County 200 years ago that Lincoln's ancestors settled.

BUYS SPEECH DRAFT

In New York, Thomas F. Madigan, autograph dealer, announced that for a price well in six figures he had bought one of the five drafts of the Gettysburg speech.

There, too, the National Republican Club planned to discuss at its annual dinner the establishment of the Abraham Lincoln University in Westchester.

London, too, recognized the day. Andrew O'Connor, Irish-American sculptor, presented to that city a bust of Lincoln carved from American limestone quarried near Lincoln's birthplace.

In Chicago a handful of men met in memory of the man who was their commander-in-chief. Each year they become fewer.

SENATE TRIBUTE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—(INS.)—Declaring Abraham Lincoln was opposed to rebellion, insurgency and even the national gesture of an international dream, Senator Reed Smoot (Rep.), of Utah, eulogized the martyred president in the Senate today in commemoration of Lincoln's anniversary.

Smoot urged the Senate and country to stand by Lincoln's ideals for a union indivisible and imperishable. His reference to the "international dream" rather astonished the Senate, since some Senators interpreted it as a criticism of the World Court.

Angler Pulled in By Fish, Drowned

HONOLULU, Feb. 12.—(AP.)—Sagugoro Kusuhara, 58, while fishing from the banks of the Wakiki Canal today, was pulled into the water and drowned when a large fish jerked his line, catching him off balance.

DENIES KEEPING WIDOW'S CHECK

Attorney U. G. Vogan today explained his side of the suit to collect from him $900, with interest for eight years, for an elderly widow, Mrs. Lena Cline, of Export.

The suit was filed by Attorney Ralph H. Hunter, who contended that Vogan, as Mrs. Cline's lawyer, had collected the sum in 1922 on a note signed by Mary E. Bethune in favor of Mrs. Cline.

This is Attorney Vogan's explanation:

"I satisfied this judgment at the request of another attorney, who stated he was unable to go to the Courthouse at the time on account of another engagement.

"The party paying the judgment had made the check to me, and asked me to enter my appearance accordingly.

"I did this and satisfied the judgment and immediately took the check to Mrs. Cline's attorney, who had a legal right to receive it, and I relied upon him to settle with his client. I never received any of the proceeds of the check, and am wholly free of any wrong in the transaction."

Squirrel Hill Raid Nets Big Rum Haul

In a raid on the home of Harry Rapoport, 32, of 6436 Nicholson street, prohibition agents last night reported seizing 112 pints of whisky, 15 gallons of alcohol and five gallons of gin.

7,000 Canary Birds Survive Fire In Ship

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(AP.)—Far down in No. 4 hold, flames to the right and left of them, a majority of 7,000 canaries lived through the fire that swept the North German Lloyd liner Muenchen.

When firemen penetrated the hold today, expecting to find all the birds dead, they were greeted by cheerful chirps.

The crates containing the birds were quickly removed to the dock and bird seed and water supplied. Two dogs in a kennel on deck also survived.

DRESSMAKERS' STRIKE ENDS

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(INS.)—Lieut. Gov. Lehman today announced a definite settlement in the dressmakers' strike had been reached and manufacturers and workers' representatives would meet this afternoon to sign contracts ending the eight-day walkout.

It was expected the agreement would return to work 22,000 of the 35,000 strikers involved, but continuation of the strike against non-union sweatshops might be continued.

Agreement was reached after an all-night conference between the manufacturers and union officials, Lehman acting as mediator.

Berlin Communists Wreck Auto Plant

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—(AP.)—The Socialist newspaper Vorwaerts today stated that 700 Communists, led by a member of the Prussian Diet, today occupied the Opel automobile works at Russelsheim, destroying part of the machinery. The police were called in. General Motors has a controlling interest in the Opel works.

Guard Who Bore Wounded Lincoln Recalls Shooting

Jacob J. Soles, 82, veteran of the Civil War, lone survivor of six young soldiers who carried Abraham Lincoln from Ford's Theater to the house in which he died, still enjoys good health and recalls many incidents of that tragic night.

At his home, 323 Greensburg pike, Wilkins Township, Mr. Soles yesterday said that his memory while not as keen as it was some years ago, he still recalled his attendance at the theater and the events connected with the shooting of the President.

J. J. Soles.

On April 14, 1865, Soles and John Corey, Jacob Griffiths and William Sample, all members of the same regiment, obtained a furlough and were given tickets to the performance of "An American Cousin." Their seats were in the balcony a few feet back of the President's box.

A great demonstration followed the initial appearance of Laura Keene, leading woman, Soles says, and the great crowd occupying standing room surged forward. It was during this acclaim, he says, that Wilkes Booth entered the rear of the President's box and fired a pistol within a few feet of Lincoln's head.

The President, who was seated in a rocking chair, fell forward. The assassin sprang from the box and tumbled upon the stage, the spur on his boot becoming entangled with the flags decorating the box.

"For a few seconds following the shot and the escape of Booth the house was silent," says Mr. Soles. "Women in the box screamed, and cries of horror came from the audience when the people realized that Mr. Lincoln was the victim. With my three comrades and two other soldiers whose names I have not learned, I ran around the balcony, pushed our way through the crowd and made our way to the President's side.

"Within a minute or two someone decided to move him to a place outside the theater where he could be given medical attention, and we carried him to a house directly across the street.

"After placing him on a cot, we remained on guard until relieved by details sent by the provost marshal who took charge of handling the crowd that surrounded the house. We returned to our company late at night, and at morning mess we received the word of Lincoln's death."

Says County Maps Err, Refused as Record

Attorney Van A. Barrickman before the Public Service Commission yesterday refused to accept for record Allegheny County's maps in a damage to property case, on the ground that he had never found them correct.

Commissioner Samuel Walker, who heard the particular cases at issue, those of Mr. and Mrs. Moritz Pfaff of Glenfield and Mathew E. Haddock, Steubenville, O., owners of property in Glenfield damaged by the elimination of an overhead crossing, said the maps should be of record.

Barrickman objected, saying that he always had difficulty with any county map he ever saw and would not accept it. Assistant County Solicitor B. B. McGinnis strenuously objected to Barrickman's remarks, but the latter stood his ground and said the deeds of his clients proved what he had said. The maps were not accepted by Commissioner Walker.

The Pfaffs, who own property jointly in Gilmore avenue, Glenfield, which they claim was damaged by the building of an overhead crossing at Glenfield in 1925, want consequential damages of $4,000, in addition to property damage already received from the county. Part of the overhead bridge rests on their land.

Haddock, who also has owned a lot in Gilmore avenue for 30 years, says the improvement has bottled up his property and is asking $5,000 damage. He regarded it as worth $3,000 before the building of the overhead bridge and the elimination of the grade crossings, while his real estate expert valued the land at $2,640. County experts valued the property at $1,600. A decision in the case will be announced later.

Hospitals for Mentally Ill Reported Needed Badly

A new hospital for the insane in Pennsylvania is required every two years to care for the increasing number of mentally ill, which is estimated at 800 annually, according to a statement made today by George R. Bedinger, of Philadelphia, executive director of the Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania, in an address before the Women's Alliance of the First Unitarian Church.

"The size of this problem, its many angles, and the vast number of insane and feeble-minded needing institutional care and training are just beginning to be realized by the public," said Mr. Bedinger. "Other states, notably New York, Massachusetts and New Jersey, outstrip Pennsylvania in providing far more bed capacity per population for state wards."

The speaker pointed out how the proposed bond issue of $50,000,000 for new welfare institutions had been thwarted by the defeat of the constitutional amendment in 1928, and of the struggles now being put forth to meet a serious situation confronting the commonwealth.

The first intimation of the tragedy came to him in Connellsville yesterday when he read newspaper accounts of the affair. Owens told Deputy Coroner R. D. Newman the deputy said.

Police said the shooting was caused by jealousy when Mrs. Owens learned that Bankert, a railroad engineer, who had been visiting her during her husband's absence had met another woman recently.

CHICAGO DRYS FACE SHAKEUP

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—(INS)—Rumors of a drastic shakeup in the prohibition enforcement ranks here persisted today with the arrival of Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran.

Arriving last night from Milwaukee, where announcement was made of impending shifts in personnel there, Commissioner Doran admitted the action of the federal grand jury here Monday in indicting 156 persons and 71 corporations for prohibition law violations brought about his visit.

Commissioner Doran is studying the action of the federal grand jury at Springfield, Ill., Monday in indicting the Fleischman Yeast Company and the Corn Products Refining Company on the supposition the concerns are involved with booze and beer makers in the use of their products.

He remarked that the consequences will be far-reaching if convictions are returned.

Following the departure of Doran and E. C. Yellowley, administrator, from Milwaukee yesterday, it was revealed that Ray J. Nye would replace W. Frank Cunningham as prohibition enforcement director of the Eastern Wisconsin district. Nye has directed enforcement in the Western area.

AWARD SOUGHT FOR SCIENTISTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—(INS)—Twelve scientists of the United States Public Health Service and a laboratory attendant, Harry B. Anderson, who died Saturday of parrot fever, have sacrificed their lives fighting mysterious diseases.

And because a rich government has neither rewarded nor honored them, Representative Griffin, of New York, today launched a campaign for the award of medals and the payment of pensions to their families.

Griffin proposes to create the Jefferson medal of honor for distinguished service in science, carrying honorariums of $100 to $500 a year.

Citing Anderson's death, Griffin named other public health service scientists who have died as a result of their work. They are:

Assistant Surgeons Roswell Wadsworth, W. C. W. Glazier, J. F. Grovenvelt, J. W. Branham, W. R. McAdam and W. M. Wightman, fighting yellow fever; T. F. Richardson and W. W. Miller, exploring typhoid fever; T. B. McClintic and Laboratory Assistant W. E. Gettinger, Field Assistant G. H. Cowan and Bacteriologist I. A. Kerle, fighting Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

Two others—Surgeon C. C. Lake and Bacteriologist Alice Evans—have been partially disabled in experiments with malta fever.

PEPPER POT SOUP

Campbell's make it for you!

From earliest Colonial times visitors to Philadelphia have returned home with glowing tales of the generous entertainment and distinctive dishes served by the gracious hostesses of those days. And particularly did they have occasion to remark on "Peppery Pot" a piquant, zestful soup of such definite character and appeal that its charms stood out in their memories above all the delicacies associated with this city famous for good things.

And what a sumptuous soup is this Philadelphia Pepper Pot, such a unique and unusual soup, with an historical background as definitely fixed in the traditions of Philadelphia as are Benjamin Franklin, Carpenters' Hall, Independence Hall or the Betsy Ross House themselves.

No other soup is like it.

A rich stock, velvety-smooth and subtly blended by Campbell's special Pepper Pot cook, with hearty pieces of delicious meat, a fiery dash of savory thyme, sweet marjoram, freshly-ground black peppercorns, generously enriched with diced potatoes and carrots, sweet pimentos and tempting macaroni dumplings.

Everybody ought to know Campbell's Pepper Pot. Such distinction! What definite personality. No wonder that its fame and reputation for hearty goodness and pungent savor have spread far beyond the city of its origin. An original soup, wholly American, which even the French cannot surpass for piquancy and zest. Your grocer can supply you with Campbell's Pepper Pot or will gladly get it for you. 12 cents a can.

64 CHILDREN KILLED HERE IN 2 YEARS

Street Maps Show 440 Injured in Same Period; Deadly Points Stressed.

Chestnut street, from the bridge to Tripoli street, proved to be the greatest nemesis to school children figuring in traffic accidents here during the past two years, a map prepared by the Bureau of Traffic Planning and distributed by the Pittsburgh Better Traffic Committee to parochial and public schools, shows.

In that section, according to the map, one child was killed, six were injured as they tried to cross the street and another was hurt in a head-on collision.

Other deadly points, as far as school children are concerned at least, were Forbes street, between Hooper and Stevenson, where two lost their lives, and South Main street, West End, where two others met a similar fate. In all 64 children met death and 449 were injured during the period, according to the map.

The street maps will be mounted in the schools and will be used for traffic study safety purposes, Dr. W. M. Davidson and the Rev. Paul Campbell, heads of the two educational systems, say.

The map was developed under the supervision of Director James M. Clark, head of the department of public safety.

Besides the 400 distributed to the school a very limited number of the maps are still available through the Bureau of Traffic Planning for organizations interested in accident prevention work.

CRIMINALS SEEK SHELTER HERE

An influx of undesirables with police records, following police cleanups in Buffalo, Cleveland, Chicago and Detroit, was reported in Police Court today by Frank Ferris, lieutenant of the homicide squad.

Ferris told Magistrate Leo Rothenberg, in procuring fines for two Negroes with police records, that scores of yeggs had invaded the city because other cities were closed to them.

Willie Strom, 32, and Clarence Morgan, 36, both Negroes, of Buffalo, were fined $25 each or 30 days in the workhouse. Ferris, who arrested them, told the court they were "undesirables"—and not wanted in Pittsburgh.

Nervous, Tired, Felt Miserable

"After my baby came I was so nervous and tired that I felt miserable. One day a booklet was left at our door and after reading it I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. MUSIC

Victor Chenkin

Carnegie Music Hall

Victor Chenkin, renowned singer of European folk music, entertained a large audience in Carnegie Music Hall last night. His program comprised songs of a jester, Italian and Russian Gypsy songs, Jewish Chassidic and folk songs and Ukrainian melodies.

J. Fred Lissfelt

Chenkin has well studied the obvious gestures of continental races, and with his costumes approaches stage effects that belong more to the cabaret than to the subtler studies of a great interpreter. With the perfecting of the talkies he ought to find a marvellous outlet for his playing, for his voice and pantomime belong to that type of entertainments. He lacked the great art that removes all traces of artificiality. In his comic Yiddish songs he was best.

Yasha Fisherman played his accompaniments.

COYNE TO SEEK NEW TRIAL

Counsel for Patrick Coyne, convicted in Federal Court on a charge of violating the national prohibition law in a saloon at 4731 Second avenue, received permission from Judge Nelson McVicar to file a motion for a new trial within four days. Coyne is a brother of State Senator James J. Coyne.

A jury, after deliberating four hours, found Coyne guilty of selling and possessing liquor and maintaining a common nuisance at the Second avenue address. The defense claimed Coyne sold the saloon to Michael Higgins before the offenses charged by the government, and produced in evidence a bill of sale.

JURY SEATING NEARS RECORD

Twelve jurors were picked in an hour and 25 minutes today to try Diadora DiMatteo, 33, of rear of 51 Boundary street, charged with the slaying of Alfonse D'Amico, 57, of 51 Boundary street.

When the jurors were queried Assistant District Attorney William Coldin made but six pre-emptory challenges and Defense Counsel A. M. Oliver 11. Fifteen jurors were challenged for cause, but were dismissed without argument. In all 44 were called and 32 dismissed.

Outlining the commonwealth's case against DiMatteo, Coldin stated that D'Amico died in the Montefiore Hospital, October 15 last, from injuries sustained when knocked down, allegedly two days before by the defendant in Boundary street following an altercation over a drink of red wine.

STATE VETS ASK HOSPITAL AID

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—AP—A delegation of Pennsylvania American Legion officers headed by Com. Frank J. Pilosa of Kittanning, and Ad... Palmer of Dauphin, of Philadelphia, yesterday presented orally outlined a credit of veterans hospitals in Pennsylvania to chief representatives in Congress.

Representative Darrow (R., Pa.) of Philadelphia, chairman of the House delegation after listening to the program of the veterans asked to call a meeting of the Pennsylvania delegation when details of the proposed building program will be discussed by Pinola.

The Pennsylvania legislature has asked for an increase in the Coatesville Hospital to 1,200 patients that he said could be added and in addition for the construction of a new hospital in central Pennsylvania. The Coatesville institution serves veterans residing in the Eastern part of the state. The Aspinwall hospital is available to Western Pennsylvania veterans and the new building would afford veterans in Central Pennsylvania government hospital accommodations.

Vanderbilt Heiress Marries in Defiance

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(INS).—Reports that in marrying Frank A. Gessell, Los Angeles oil promoter, here last night, Mrs. Teresa Frabbi Clark, granddaughter of the original Cornelius Vanderbilt, had defied her father, Ernesto G. Frabbi, were unconfirmed today. Frabbi was said to be in Miami. Mrs. Shepard Frabbi, the bride's mother, attended the ceremony.

The bride met Gessell while in Reno, obtaining a divorce from James Cameron Clark, who settled $5,000,000 and a small trust fund on his wife when they parted.

British Museum 'Dud' Bomber Sentenced

LONDON, Feb. 12.—(AP).—A fine of £20 or two months' imprisonment was the sentence imposed today upon Frank Biggs, 21-year-old clerk who placed a "bomb" in the India room of the British Museum, 10 days ago, in an attempt to manufacture a sensational newspaper story and so forward his journalistic ambitions.

The bomb was virtually a "dud"—a tobacco tin filled with putty except for some explosive apparently taken from fireworks.

Briggs, who acted as his own counsel, declared he had no intention of committing an outrage, but simply desired to forward his plan to become a newspaperman. He pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing ammunition without a certificate.

PACKERS DODGE DECREE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—(AP).—The Senate Agriculture Committee was informed today by Attorney General Mitchell that the packers had "never fully complied" with a consent decree under which they were to confine themselves principally to meat packing.

The Attorney General added, however, that because of extensions of time by court order the packers have "not as yet been guilty of disobedience to the terms of the decree."

The Mitchell letter was in response to a Senate resolution asking the present status of the decree which the packers have asked to be modified on the ground that conditions have changed since entry of the decree February 27, 1920. It was placed in the record by Chairman McNary, of the Agriculture Committee.

AFGHAN BORDER POST TAKEN

PESHAWAR, India, Feb. 12.—(AP.)—Eight hundred Shinwari Tribesmen have attacked and captured the post of Torkham on the frontier of Afghanistan and the northwest frontier province, disarming the Garrison and driving them into British territory.

The Shinwaris are partisans of Sardar Amin Khan, half-brother of the exiled King Amanullah of Afghanistan. British authorities here believed that the attack may have been caused by the arrest in Peshawah of Amin Khan, who was suspected of plotting an uprising against the present king of Afghanistan.

Other military activity and some fighting were reported from the Afghan side of the famous Khyber Pass, but this was not confirmed. In any case caravan traffic to and from Kabul, capital of Afghanistan, has been suspended through the pass.

Sardar Amin Khan and Abdul Hakim Khan, Amanullah's trade agent in Peshawar, were arrested last week. The northwest frontier province government alleged that they were engaged in a "conspiracy to disturb the peace in Afghanistan." Nadir Khan, uncle of Amanullah, is the ruler of the turbulent Afghan state.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION
Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 30 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.
These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.
If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headache, a listless, no good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.
Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

Banish PIMPLY Sallow Skin

Lift the Ugly Veil of Blemishes
Beneath the surface lies radiant complexion beauty, ready and waiting to give the charm of glowing health to the skin—clear, silken, soft, fine-textured and warmly colored—just as soon as the basic cause of blemishes is removed.
Pimples, acne, sallowness, blotches, and dull, pasty complexions all too frequently result from intestinal stasis—an internal sluggishness that poisons the entire system. A toxic blood-stream feeds impurities to the skin tissues. Infections and blemishes flourish. Such a condition is septic, and bodily resistance is low. Disease finds a septic system easy prey.
Correction is often easy—if the condition be due to constipation. But septics seldom know. Someone will tell you of a fetid breath, or body odor. But your mirror will reveal those skin blemishes. Nature's signals of a septic system.
Three Days Will Often Work A Marvelous Change
Try this week and see. A few tiny calcium wafers (Stuart's) will supply the elements that Nature may need. Speedily everything will be made sweet and clean, inside as well as out. A purified system often shows immediately. Eyes Bright! Skin Clear—soft, smooth and warm with color! Let one dime open this easy way to skin beauty and health.

Tour of Lincoln Museum Radio Highlight Tonight

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor

A TOUR of the Lincoln Museum at Washington and the National Republican Club dinner are considered among the radio attractions of Lincoln Day on the air.

A Columbia reporter will describe the Lincoln Museum for WJAS listeners at 6:30. Scenes from "Hell-Bent for Glory," a story of War Patrol Bailey, will be broadcast by WCAE at 7:30.

Patrick Hurley

Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island" will be dramatized by the Blue Fathom Trawlers, WJAS, at 8.

We Now Present

Ben Bernie returns to WCAE for four weeks starting May 1.

E. M. M., 1014 Morrison avenue—Ted Kay is 21, single. Dick Powell is 25, says the Christy Wilbert at the Stanley. The "Show Boat" program originates in the Columbia studios, not on a real boat.

"SPEEDY"

The average life of the tubes manufactured by a Pittsburgh concern through 60 years of service is credited to G. G. Brashear, sales engineer. The Speedy tube mentioned by listeners who was used for CBS broadcasts greeting cables to Marconi, is one of are taking part in the program. Brashear said.

Tubes pass through many delicate operations and severe inspection. They are packed with the care accorded eggs.

IMPORTANT JOB

Jimmy Vogel, waiter at the Nixon, who pulls the fresh flowers out of the tin can which is the bane of the dog, the latest friend of Amos 'n' Andy. We guess Bill Hay.

Pittsburgh stations might well follow the example set by KFI in announcing any changes made in their schedule after it has been released to newspapers.

George Frazier Brown, Matt Thompson has received an invitation to coal mines in Western Pennsylvania to gather material for his sketches. The letter was sent Browne by a coal miner who peeved that coal miners have not received a bigger play from Browne.

Josephine Harmon, who does songs in an original way, will entertain on the RKO matinee through WCAE tomorrow at 5.

A Lincoln favorite, "The Vacant Chair," will be sung on the

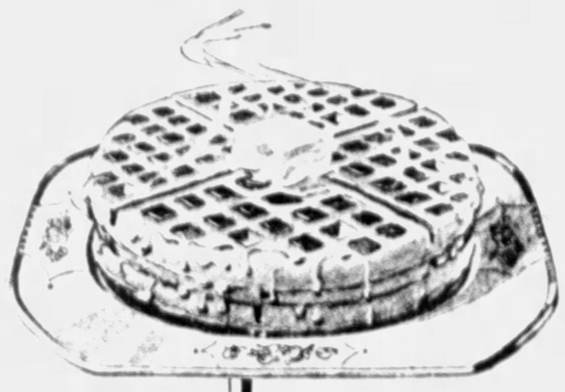
OLD FASHIONED WAFFLES



the new-fashioned electric way

THE same delicious taste for which grandma's "waffle dinners" were always famous . . . the same appetizing richness that lasted down to the very last "bite" . . . is most successfully retained in the new-fashioned electric way of Waffle baking.

You'll find that the Electric Waffle Iron has quite effectively added convenience to the art of Waffle-baking. The modern method is to make waffles right at the table without the bother of greasing, the baking being done electrically by simply plugging-in to a nearby electric connection.

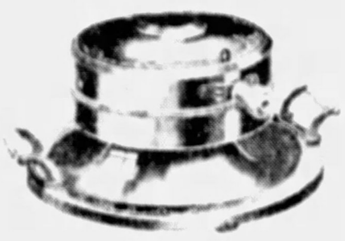
Only a few minutes time to have tempting and delicious waffles all ready to serve with plenty of butter and a generous spread of maple syrup . . . waffles with all that old-fashioned goodness.

GRANDMA'S OLD RECIPE FOR YOUR ELECTRIC WAFFLE IRON

2 eggs
1½ cup milk
2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons melted butter
1 tablespoon sugar

Sift dry ingredients. Separate yolks and whites of eggs. Add milk to yolks, beat yolks and add to dry ingredients. Beat well. Add butter and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites last. Heat electric waffle iron 10 minutes before starting to bake. Pour batter into a pitcher and pour from pitcher onto waffle iron.

Electric Waffle Irons are now being offered at Special Sale Prices at your nearest Electric or Hardware Dealer or at the Gas and Electric Shops.



DUQUESNE LIGHT CO.

"THERE'S A WEALTH OF HEALTH IN WAFFLES!"

... at the gong it's "GO!"

... in a cigarette it's TASTE!

WHAT seems like a slight difference, in one cigarette, grows mighty important in a month's smoking.

You might take Chesterfield's silky mildness for granted—but just notice that it never tastes "flat." And where else but in Chesterfield will you find such delicate shading of flavor, such spicy aroma of choice tobaccos, such rich and satisfying character?

Better taste is always important—and in Chesterfield it's

"TASTE above everything"

YOUTHFULNESS and BEAUTY

are dependent upon a strong body— firm flesh— a clear skin

Loss of strength, flabby flesh and skin eruptions are but a few of the symptoms of a deeper and more dangerous trouble—a lack of the normal count of red-cells in the blood.

NOTHING is more beautiful, more inspiring, more glorified than the supreme manifestation of Nature in the human body. Those sparkling eyes, that clear skin, that firm flesh, and that vigor of action denoting vitality, bespeak loveliness and internal healthfulness.

And so, is it not our birthright to be masters over our own bodies? To be sure not much is said openly about personal handicaps—skin blemishes—sallow complexion—poor health—but secretly they influence many important affairs.

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of skin blemishes, lack of appetite, flabby flesh and loss of energy as an indication that the body's power of resistance is low—that there is a deficiency of red-blood-cells.

When you build back your red-cells to the correct number you will have followed Nature's own way of regaining Health. Your skin should clear up and you should have the body strength to fight against disease and infection. You should get hungry again and sleep soundly. Firm flesh should take the place of that which was once flabby. You should feel strong; your nerves become steady.

This is why so many thousands, seeking youthfulness and beauty, have taken a course of S. S. S. It helps Nature restore the blood to its normal state. Without plenty of rich, red-blood-cells there would be no strong, sturdy, powerful men or beautiful, healthy women.

The why of a clear skin

A clear, smooth, lovely skin speaks of rich, red blood within. It is Nature's outward reflection of internal healthfulness.

First impressions cannot be good without a clear skin—first impressions are quickly made and are not soon forgotten. Old friends may excuse pimples and secretly sympathize but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting. They cannot be covered up. They embarrass. Hold people back. Steal away joy and happiness.

Men and women, both, justly covet admiration and all may expect such satisfaction to its fullest extent if they are the possessors of a clear, unblemished skin.

If you are unfortunate in this respect you owe it to yourself and friends to remove the cause. Nature will then provide the complexion which is so much desired.

More important still, strong healthy blood nourishes the body and fights against infection and disease.

MOVE MADE FOR NEW DETENTION HOME

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

CHARLIE DOYLE, the Boswell of baseball, told the story 20 years ago and Pat Barnes, the Sharon boy who broadcasts from Chicago, told it the other night over the radio, and now we're telling it

Stanton, the secretary of war, and Gen. McClellan were at odds. McClellan went over Stanton's head to wire President Lincoln:

"Have captured seven cows. What shall I do with them?"

President Lincoln answered: "Milk them."

Things become more discouraging daily for burglars. Now there is being introduced in Pittsburgh a box for valuables which will probably wipe out the profession. You lock your jewels in this box, indifferently place the box on the kitchen table, and retire for the night, leaving all windows and doors open. The burglar arrives, goes to the kitchen for a cup of coffee and eyes the box selfishly. He finishes his coffee, lifts the box—and immediately an alarm sounds. Disgusted, the burglar departs without the loot. The alarm is contained in the box and operates on the principle of somehow or other—

IF THERE is any doubt as to the popularity of Amos 'n' Andy, the Bell Telephone Company makes an excellent witness for the accused. Mr. F. J. Chesterman, vice president of the company, has conducted an exclusive investigation for Sidewalks which reveals that when Amos 'n' Andy are on the radio—from 7 to 7:15 p. m.—there is a decided slump in telephone calling, sometimes as great as 15 per cent. There is no doubt whatever that Amos 'n' Andy are responsible for this. Immediately the pair go off the air, things return to normal and everybody rushes to the 'phone.

As dapper as ever, Johnnie Black, press agent, is with us again, this time with his two old friends, Maluba and Massamba, who are as well-known in their own sphere as John is in the field of press-agentry.

Maluba and Massamba are cannibals and very successful cannibals. And it is not surprising that Mr. Black is their press agent, for he has press-agented crocodiles, zebras, auto racers and one-man street cars in his time.

John is a truthful press agent and we believe every word of his piano story. John took Maluba and Massamba to the Downtown Y. M. C. A. the other day to show them off and when Maluba and Massamba heard somebody pounding out "There's No Place Like Home" on the piano they refused to do their dance until Dr. Davenport, their sponsor, had promised them a piano, matinees and evenings.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.

OVER in London, the wives of our delegates are being given quite a few luncheons this week. Considering what their delegate husbands have done for England, these ladies could insist on breakfast, luncheons and dinners for the rest of their natural lives.

President Hoover landed a giant fish seven feet long, weighing 45 pounds. Not bad for a fellow who really tells the truth about his catches.

What I like about Fisherman Hoover is that he brings along plenty of witnesses. I have met fellows who caught fish twice as big as that, but I never met anybody who was with them at the time. Fishermen are skeptical, as a rule, and many a jealous line-thrower will doubt Hoover's ability, so I would advise Mister Hoover to invite Jimmy Walker into his fishing party as a witness, because the world knows that a Democrat would not tell a "fish story" for a Republican, even though he is president.

P. S.—This is Lincoln's birthday and every real American pays homage to his memory. His greatest act was to free the slaves — someone should tell Senator Heflin.

"CHICKIE"

Chickie's Friend Marries Poor Young Man

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Chickie Bryce, only daughter of a devoted father and mother, is attending business college when the story opens. Arthur Sontag, a classmate, takes her to a dance and she confides to her friend, Mary Blake, that the avenues of romance are opening to her. Chickie's father fears the pitfalls ahead of his daughter, but his wife allays his fears. Chickie imagines she is in love with Arthur. Mary and Chickie blandly discuss love and marriage; Mary says it's too sordid for her, but Chickie thinks it will be all kisses and "walking on the mountain tops with her sweetheart by her side." Arthur stops calling on her and she feels heartbroken. She forgets him, however, in the excitement of getting a place in an office. There she meets Janina, a cynical girl whose philosophy of life astonishes her. Through Janina Chickie meets Jake Munson, rich and attractive bachelor. He proposes a party and asks Chickie if she will attend. Mary is in love with a poor, young chemist, but Chickie is not enthused about it. Jimmy Blake, Mary's brother, hints to Chickie that he has loved her for years.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VII.

LUCY'S little son George was just getting over the mumps, Martha Blake, his grandmother, wanted him to have this great jar of chicken broth. It would put bone and sinew into the lad—bring the color back to the white little cheeks.

Would Mary and Chickie mind running down with it? Cheer Lucy up a bit—the poor girl hadn't been out of the house in weeks.

She loaded their arms with bundles.

They went in the back way. Lucy was in the kitchen heating a saucepan of milk. Wisps of her pale brown hair hung about her forehead. As she turned to greet them little quivers ran about her lips. She kept her eyes down, but the lids were red, as though she had been crying.

They were half ashamed to look at her. They put down their bundles hastily. Mary said: "Mother sent over this soup, Lucy—for Georgie. And here's a bag of the most gorgeous doughnuts. Try one."

Lucy kept her back to them, intent on the milk. Chickie could see her cheek. A slow tear was trickling from the corner of her eye.

She slipped her arm about Lucy's waist, whispering timidly, "Little George isn't worse, is he?"

"Lucy shook her head.

"Lucy, darling—you're just tired."

Lucy faced them then, her mouth twitching miserably. "Oh, I ought to be ashamed of myself, I suppose. But Teddy fell and cut his hand, and George had to go to lodge and I was here all alone."

She shook her head back, bringing a laugh that was full of tears to her lips. "Well, there; I guess it's just the strain. You two are just angels, coming over so much. I'll never be able——"

Lucy Nervous
Caring for Her Children Keeps Her Busy

She couldn't finish, but went over to the table, opening the bag of doughnuts. "I have some lovely jelly. Sit down, I'll make a cup of chocolate."

From the adjoining room came a petulant "Mamma—mamma."

"There—he's awake—Georgie, I'm coming — mother's coming—" Lucy flew down the hall.

Almost immediately other voices rose. "Mamma—a jink—I wanna jink of water." Then Teddy, "Mamma, my hand hurts! It hurts orful!"

Lucy's gentle voice soothed. "Never mind now. Mother'll kiss it. There—it's better. Go to sleep."

Lucy came back to the kitchen. She didn't sit down. There was the baby's food to prepare; little clothes to fold; bottles to sterilize.

They helped her, trying to squeeze in a lot of cozy, intimate chatter, but Lucy kept saying, "Yes? Oh, what was that?" and running into the pantry, then out to the porch, coming back with, "What's that you were saying?"

She seemed entirely unaware of this nervous tensity. When they were leaving her face had a pretty flush. "Why, I feel a thousand times better! Drop in tomorrow—please—we'll have another quiet little chat—"

They walked home slowly, arm in arm. The night drifted softly about them annointing her robes with the distilled fragrance of roses and sweet peas, coming out again languorous with dreams. It swayed about them, sweet with romance.

Happiness Doubted
Mary Says Lucy Would Marry Again

Chickie said, "Oh, isn't it glorious, though? And poor Lucy stuck in the house there. It's just a shame. She's so sweet with it all!"

"That's because underneath Lucy is really happy."

"Oh Mary! Why, she doesn't know what happiness means! Lucy's only 30, and she can look down on her whole life and see that there just never is going to be any pleasure in it. Why she can't think of herself for a single minute—couldn't even sit down and talk to us. Just look at her, and how pretty she used to be! Her whole life is doomed."

Mary's lips tightened in a flaming silence. She said suddenly, with a rapid catch in her voice: "It's only because Lucy's nervous now. She's been terribly worried, and so many things come all at once."

Chickie nodded dubiously. "I'd just like to bet, Mary, that if Lucy could have known all this she'd never—"

Mary interrupted with a quiet finality. "She'd do the very same thing again."

Chickie trembled. "Mary, you don't really believe that?"

"Yes! Yes. Oh, Lucy was terribly in love. I can remember. She used to go about almost in a trance. She was wild about George. She is yet. What was there for her if she didn't marry?

Mary went on now in a feverish excitement quickening her pace, digging her fingers hard against Chickie's arm. "Why, what else could she do? If you love, you have to marry. For pity sakes, Chickie, do you think people can stop living just because life is hard?

"It's not hard for every one, and if Lucy didn't have so many children all at once it wouldn't be hard for her. Look at Nora Bright. She loved and married and has everything just the way she wants it and not one single thing to bother her."

Mary in Love
Admits That She Cares For Poor Chemist

"Nora Bright!" A shrug of contempt. "Why's she's not half as happy as Lucy. You know what I've learned, Chickie? People that have the hardest times, like Lucy and my mother, get the very most out of life. They go down and feel the heart of things. Nora Bright reminds me of a big bisque doll that is always smiling because it never feels."

"Oh, you sound just like your mother, Mary. You're only re-

Pupils Cheering Up Their Favorite Policeman

PATROLMAN DEAN MORIARTY — DOROTHY ROLNICK — JOHN CROSBY

John and Dorothy presenting the flowers, fruit and candy sent by pupils of Frick Elementary School to Patrolman Moriarty, at St. Margaret's Hospital, after an operation. His duty's to control traffic in front of their school building.

PUPILS CHEER ILL PATROLMAN

Patrolman Dean Moriarty lies in St. Margaret's Hospital today, happy that his little friends of the Frick Elementary School, Fifth avenue and Boquet street, remember him.

At his bedside are bright-colored flowers, fruits, candy sent by them to cheer him through his illness.

When Moriarty was discharged from the One Hundred Twentieth Infantry Thirtieth Division shortly after the World War, he looked for work. He became a policeman in 1920.

He was assigned to a beat in the Schenley Farms district five years ago. Thaffic was heavy on Fifth avenue, so he stopped before and after school hours to help the pupils of the Bellefield school safely across the street.

Three weeks ago, Moriarty fell sick and went to the hospital for a serious operation.

Children at the new Frick Elementary School missed him. Eight hundred strong, they banded together in their effort to cheer the patrolman. Pennies, nickels and dimes from their lunch money, allowances or savings poured into the remembrance fund.

Dorothy Rolnick, 11, 304 Meyran avenue, and John Crosby, 11, 28 Emma street, paid him a visit. The two children from the sixth grade brought him the best wishes of all their schoolmates. They hoped he wasn't suffering, that the flowers and fruit had cheered him.

"Give my best to all the 'kids' and tell them I'll be back with them before long," the policeman called after them when they left.

FIRES LAID TO CARELESSNESS

Eighty-five per cent of the fires in the United States are the result of carelessness, T. Alfred Fleming of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, told 500 watchmen, janitors and building superintendents in the second meeting of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce fire prevention school in the chamber last night. The loss from fires last year was $1,112,000,000, he said.

He cited an experience in a Pittsburgh orphanage. The entire population of the asylum was in peril daily because no one had bothered to test the fire extinguishers, the hose lines or the pipes in four years, he said.

"Business firms comply with the insurance regulations and install all these fire protection devices," he declared, "but once it is done, no one bothers to see whether they are kept in working condition. One of the greatest faults today in building construction is that no one thinks to separate the building into units by walls or barriers for protection of life and property in case of fire."

Food Show Offers Free Marriage To Couple

Gifts of a well-stocked larder and other household accessories, a bridal bouquet, the minister's fee and transportation and $100 in gold have been offered to the newly weds who agree to be publicly married at the food show at Motor Square Garden on the evening of Washington's Birthday. The offer is made by J. V. Loughran on behalf of the Retail Grocers' Association, 908 Sherman avenue, North Side.

Only two stipulations are required of the applicants. The bride and bridegroom must be resident of Allegheny county and they must agree to a public ceremony at the food show. A limousine will be provided to transport the wedding party to and from the garden.

EXTRA COST ON SEWER VOTED

Council has affirmed an ordinance authorizing payment of $5,000 for extra work on Chartiers avenue sewers.

Construction of the sewers was suspended last fall to permit traffic after West Carson street was closed while the widening project was in progress.

City engineers advised Council yesterday that it is advisable to resume work on the Chartiers avenue sewers at once, so that the street may be ready by March 15 for traffic that will be denied the use of West Carson street when repaving of that thoroughfare is begun in the spring.

The extra work expense represents the cost of transporting drilling equipment and excavating frozen ground.

PENAL BODY STUDIES PLANS

Project Will Be Part of President's Enforcement Drive; Open Offices Here

The erection of a modern Juvenile Detention Home and a model Prison Farm and a demonstration of constructive parole work will be Alegheny County's contribution toward the activities of President Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission.

The appointment of Dr. Louis N. Robinson, chairman of the board of the Pennsylvania Committee on Penal Affairs, as a member of the Committee on Institutions, Probation and Parole of the Hoover commission is regarded as the first step in this direction.

Dr. Robinson

The Western branch of the Pennsylvania Committee on Penal Affairs is a constituent body of the Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh and recently opened headquarters in the Bakewell building.

OPEN OFFICES HERE

The executive committee of the local branch comprises Frank B. Ingersoll, chairman; Joseph A. Anderson, vice-chairman; W. R. McKnight, treasurer, and Adele Shaw, treasurer. K. D. McGruder is executive secretary in charge of the offices.

Plans for the Juvenile Home and County Farm, which are now being studied, are expected to be ready for inspection within three months, according to Mr. McGruder.

In the meantime the details are being worked out by a sub-committee of the Allegheny County Board of Prison Inspectors consisting of Judge James R. Macfarlane, Judge James H. Gray, and Controller Robert G. Woodside.

Dr. Robinson in his connection with the Hoover commission, it is pointed out, will be enabled to coordinate his work nationally with that in Pennsylvania.

FACT FINDING BODY

Dr. Robinson in a statement said that the Pennsylvania Committee on Penal Affairs is a fact-finding body that seeks to make itself a center of information throughout the state, and welcomes inquiries from private citizens and public officials desirous of improving conditions in the Penal service.

Its task, he said, is to help obtain more effective treatment of adult offenders and of children in difficulty or in conflict with the law; building up public opinion, advising judges and penal administrators, and promoting changes in the law when necessary. Its activities are thus based on needs revealed by research and investigation of facts and not on theoretical considerations.

Modernizing Marriage Subject of Debate

Shall the wheels of the divorce court mill turn easier?

Should the word "obey" be omitted from the marriage ceremony—as far as woman is concerned?

It is ethical for milady to hold on to her job after the knot of holy wedlock has been tied?

All these questions and many more will be decided one way or another next Sunday morning when the Corner Y's Club of Smithfield Street Methodist Episcopal Church debates the question, "Resolved, That the Institution of Marriage Should Be Modernized."

For some time members of the club have been undecided as to whether marriage should be made over, and they hope that the forthcoming debate will settle the matter—at least as far as they are concerned—one way or another.

At the conclusion of the argumentation a secret ballot of the class will be taken on the question of whether or not true love is a prerequisite to a happy match.

Martha O'Bryon Stannah and Oscar V. Sanford will argue for modernization, and Margaret Stephens and William J. Porter, Jr., will support the institution as it now stands, it has been announced.

Ida May Brown and John E. Crawford, of the committee on better teaching, will be in charge of the meeting and debate. Floyd T. Jones is president of the club.

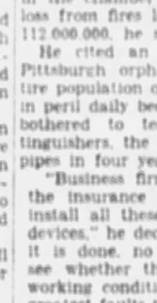
The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

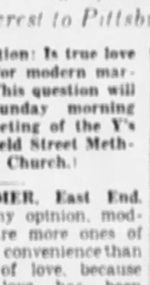
Today's Question: Is true love a prerequisite for modern marriage? (Note: This question will be debated Sunday morning next at the meeting of the Y's Club of Smithfield Street Methodist Episcopal Church.)

MINNA BLUMER, East End, secretary—"In my opinion, modern marriages are more ones of convenience than of love, because love has been subordinated to a great extent in the scheme of things. In other words love has been forced out of the picture. The individuals contemplating marriage, with few exceptions, seemed to be more concerned with the question of wealth and social position than of real old-fashioned love. Some day the status of things may change."



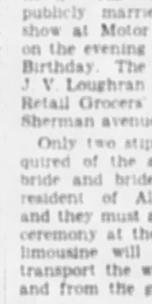
Miss Blumer

ADA DAVIES, Squirrel Hill, teacher—"Absolutely, true love is a necessity for any sort of marriage. Without love the match is sure, sooner or later, to go on the rocks. If there was a little more love in the present marriage market the divorce mills would stop grinding out separations like they are doing. Marriage has endured too long with love to be able to get along without it now."



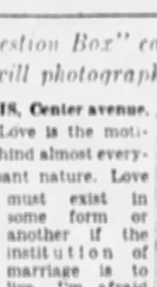
Miss Davies

SYLVIA LEWIS, Center avenue, stenographer—"Love is the motivating factor behind almost everything of a pleasant nature. Love must exist in some form or another if the institution of marriage is to live. I'm afraid that these modern ideas of wedlock can't exist. In the first place they are too radical and in the second place they are contrary to the laws of human nature. When a couple marries both should do it with the thought in mind that they are making a life-long match. Otherwise the venture will go on the rocks."



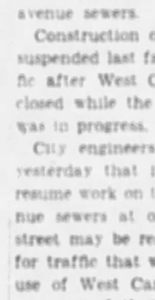
Miss Lewis

ZELDA COOPER, Oakland, typist—"Without love marriage is a dismal failure. With it the existence of both contracting parties is a Paradise on Earth. When the first glow of infatuation of the honeymoon and courtship days wears off both the husband and wife become continual fault-finders, irritable and unpleasant to one another. That is unless there lies underneath the surface true and abiding love that smooths out the problems that confront every couple."



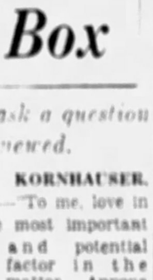
Miss Cooper

BLANCHE KORNHAUSER, Schenley Farms—"To me, love in marriage is the most important and potential factor in the matter. Anyone knows that a match can't exist for long unless there is something down deep underneath the surface to smooth things out when strife and troubles occur. Marriage is a venture in itself. When troubles come love is the steadying influence. With it the couple travel on to happiness. Without it the match goes on the rocks."

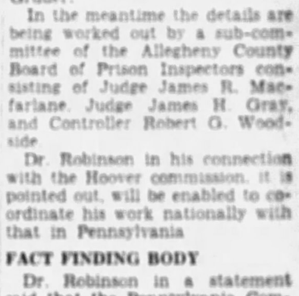


MissKornhauser

JULIA BROWARSKY, Oakdale, bookkeeper—"Love, in this day and age, has to be the prerequisite for marriage, as it is called. In the days gone by the average woman looked to mere man as a meal ticket and oftentimes married him just for that purpose. It is done today somewhat, but not to such an extent as previously. Emancipation has made it possible for a woman or girl to earn her own living so she can live financially independent of anyone. Because of this she can wait until 'the right man' comes around."



Miss Browarsky



NEW YORK, Feb. 12.

HERE is the happiest thing I ever wrote. Everywhere I go some stranger asks me, "How is Fred Stone, will he ever dance again. I never met him, but I always admired him."

I have just come from his opening night. What a triumph. Just think, with every bone and thing about him broken and shattered—all but his spirit, yet he never lost faith. He looked forward to dancing as well as ever in his best show since the Red Mill. Four Stones, all marvelous, their devotion equals their cleverness.

Now what's worrying me is how are they going to kill him off eventually. If I attend his funeral it will be no surprise to me at the cemetery when he arises and announces that the festivities are called off and then goes into a song and dance.

Yours,
WILL

SEWER PLANS HELD SCHEME FOR JOBS

Council Told Projects Are Proposed to Avert Slash in City Payroll

Chairman W. Y. English, of Council's Finance Committee, has hinted that city engineers are trying to initiate sewer construction to forestall an expected discharge of employes for lack of work.

New ordinances for sewers costing about $200,000 were introduced in committee yesterday and prompted discussion as to necessity.

"It is significant that these ordinances are presented now when we want to cut engineers of the payroll," English remarked.

The projects include a sewer costing $130,000 in the Gallion avenue district of Brookline, another with no estimate of the cost to connect sewers in Mt. Oliver borough and Baldwin township with the Becks Run drainage basin; a third costing $1,000 on Writt way, Stafford street and two city-owned lots; a fourth costing $2,806 on Parkfield avenue, Carrick, from Copperfield street to Fairland street; a fifth costing $45,000 in West End Park and Warden street and the last, with no estimate of cost that would connect a proposed sewer on property of the Wabash Railroad Company with the Saw Mill Run sewer.

CIVIL WAR VETS LEAD LINCOLN EXERCISES

County Guards' Dinner in Memorial Hall to Draw Hundreds; Offices Closed

The memory of Abraham Lincoln, who rose from obscurity as a backwoods lawyer to President of the United States, was being honored today by patriotic organizations throughout Pittsburgh and Allegheny County on the occasion of his one hundred and twenty-first birthday.

Banks, the stock exchange and clearing house, many public offices and a number of business houses remained closed out of respect for the martyred Emancipator. County and city offices, with the exception of the Courts of Common Pleas and Quarter Sessions, the offices of the District Attorney, Sheriff and Clerk of Courts, were closed. Limited service was provided at the postoffice.

VETS CELEBRATE

The remnant of the army that served from Pittsburgh during the Civil War again will honor Lincoln tonight at the Allegheny County Veterans Guards' dinner in Memorial Hall. The Federated Patriotic Orders, affiliated with the G. A. R., Women's Relief Corps, Ladies of the G. A. R. and Sons and Daughters of Union Veterans are sponsoring the event. Judge W. H. S. Thomson and Ph. Engelskirker, commander of the Department of Pennsylvania, Grand Army of the Republic, will speak. John E. Sautter, president of the Federated Patriotic Orders, will be toastmaster. C. W. William Ruhe will preside.

A dinner at the University Club tonight, under auspices of the South Side Advancement Association, will also revere Lincoln. George J. Kambach, city councilman, will be guest of honor. Those scheduled as speakers are Mayor Charles H. Kline, County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, F. J. Chesterman, vice president of the Bell Telephone Company, W. T. Mossman, of Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation and Councilman John S. Herron. Members of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce will be guests.

SCHOOL PROGRAMS

Special services in memory of Lincoln held in both public and parochial schools throughout the city and county. Teachers told of his career and themes were written to perpetuate his memory in the hearts of the children.

Employes and officials at the City-County Building wore white carnations in honor of the Civil War president, following a custom established some years ago by the late Controller E. S. Morrow. Charles Schulteis, friend of Mr. Morrow, presented the flowers to Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang, who distributed them to the various offices.

CO-EDS TO HOLD 'PLAY DAY'

All women students will participate in the first annual "Play Day" at Duquesne University Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The activities will be under the supervision of Miss Daniella Shannon, director of physical education.

The co-eds will stage a number of basketball games along with other contests and will bring the gala day to a close with refreshments prepared in the university cafeteria. It will be the largest gathering of full-time women students to be held on the campus. The principal events of the day will be held in the university gymnasium.

The first basketball play day will bring the girls together on a common basis of competition and in addition to affording an opportunity for the women students to become acquainted with each other probably will make possible the choice of a basketball team to represent the co-eds in competition with other schools.

NEW SHAKEUP IN GLASSPORT

Glassport's police force experienced a shakeup again last night.

The latest move by Burgess Seward J. Gross was the fifth time in six weeks that Sergt. Fritz Quinn has been shifted. It was the fourth time for Michael Cobac to be moved or fired and only the third for Lieut. A. E. Lloyd. Desk Officer Peter Wible and Patrolmen George Joshin and Clarence Urban ki.

Promptly at 6:53 p. m. Burgess Gross appeared at police headquarters and posted his list. Officers Wible and Lloyd, who were in the station, were notified of changes affecting themselves, they said. The latter met Officer Quinn on the street and informed him of the shakeup and the other men were informed later in the evening.

Within an hour after the notice had been posted the councilmanic police committee, of which Deputy Sheriff James Lutet is chairman, met and announced that the men were to continue functioning as before in spite of the burgess' orders.

CITY DEMANDS RENT FOR HALL

Council has adopted George J. Kambach's motion instructing the City Solicitor to collect $12,500 due from John Douglas, contractor, as delinquent rent for garage space in the Music Hall of the Old Exposition Building.

In another motion Council instructed Public Works Director Edward G. Lang to auction a lease on the space.

Louis Alpern, hauling contractor, is an applicant for the space and has increased an original offer of $3,000 to $5,200, after the Ready Mixed Concrete Company had bid $5,000 a year.

City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt advised Council yesterday that Douglas rented the building in 1925, but has not paid any rent since 1927.

Waldschmidt declared the city is protected by a note signed by Douglas and by possessing titles to 12 trucks valued at $18,000.

Douglas claims he made alterations in the building at his own expense and takes the position that he should receive credit in a decrease in the delinquent rent charge, Waldschmidt said.

URGE JAIL SITE FOR PARK

Erection of the new County Office Building at Ross and Diamond streets to its original contemplated height of 15 stories, instead of six, as is now being done, would provide space for the county jail and allow removal of the present jail and convert the resulting space into a public park and traffic circle, the Jail Removal Association, sponsoring the idea, believes.

Traffic coming into the city from the Liberty Bridge, South Hills, Forbes street and Fifth avenue would be adequately provided for, it is argued. Aside from this, a civic center would be created, it is said, and the official buildings of both the city and county would be centered in one group with a public square as an axis.

"Such action," a statement of the association reads, "would hasten a real estate boom in the Forbes street and Fifth avenue area and would quicken development of the Try street railroad yards and Terminal Warehouse properties. Increased assessments would result in more revenue to both the city and county and would transform a now ugly site to one of the rare beauty spots of Pittsburgh."

CHARTER GIVEN S. SIDE GROUP

A charter to the South Side Advancement Association, comprised of large manufacturing concerns was granted in Common Pleas Court yesterday. The purposes of the organization were given as "protecting, fostering and developing of the commercial, financial and general interests of the South Side."

Officers are: President, J. L. Roth; vice presidents, Charles L. Black, O. B. Craig and William G. Yost; secretary, H. M. Englert and treasurer, F. William Rudel.

Listed as members are the Oliver Iron and Steel Company, Bailey-Farrell Manufacturing Company, Iron and Glass Dollar Savings Bank, Consolidated Ice Company, Pittsburgh Terminal Company, Duquesne Light Company, United States Glass Company, Jones Warehouse, South Pittsburgh Water Company and the Equitable Gas Company.

Cost in Zone Cases Up to Beneficiaries

City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt has advised Council that the city can legally charge the cost of advertising and clerical expense incident to an ordinance changing the zoning classification of property or granting permission for the installation of a railroad switch or overhead passageway to the person or firm especially benefitted by the legislation.

Council received the solicitor's opinion at a committee meeting yesterday and acted at once by affirming an amendment to an existing ordinance whereby the fixed charge for advertising, etc., would be increased from $100 to $150.

Council has affirmed an ordinance authorizing an agreement between the city and Allegheny County for a division of the cost of the proposed $3,500,000 bridge to span the Ohio river and connecting the West End at Main and Steuben streets with the North Side at Manhattan street and Western avenue.

Under the proposed agreement, the county would pay for the bridge proper and the city would pay $428,000 property damages and $140,000 for physical work in connection with the construction of the southerly approach.

HOOVER RESTS, READS MAIL

LONG KEY, Fla., Feb. 12 (AP).—Refreshed and rested by two days of excellent fishing in the waters of the Atlantic off the Florida Keys, President Hoover exercised the presidential prerogative of changing his mind and did not go fishing this morning as he had planned.

Instead he stayed aboard the houseboat Saunterer and devoted his attention to the first batch of mail he had received since he left Washington Saturday night.

Other members of the President's party, however, put out in small boats to continue their sport. Word was brought from the vacationer by Lawrence Richey, one of the President's secretaries, that Mr. Hoover planned to arrive off Long Key in the Atlantic Ocean shortly after noon to renew his efforts to land another sail fish such as he caught an hour after he began fishing on Monday morning.

The President has been keeping in close touch with the naval arms conference, it was indicated yesterday and today, by the activity of Captain Allen Buchanan, his naval aide.

One of the reasons Mr. Hoover decided to remain aboard the Saunterer during the forepart of the day was that the sailfish seemed to be biting with more frequency and regularity after 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The President also had observed that sharks seemed to be bothering the parts less in the afternoons than in the mornings. Already two members of the party have lost fine catches to sharks which attacked just as the quarry was being pulled into the boat.

BOY MASTER OF VIOLIN HERE

By J. FRED LISSFELT

Yehudi Menuhin—pronounced Ye-hu-di Men-u-hin, the h's slightly like the German ch's—the sensational boy violinist who plays with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra Friday night and Saturday afternoon, arrived at Pennsylvania Station last night unaffected and unconcerned excepting for a box of crackers which a friend had given him before leaving Cleveland. Accompanying him were his father and his accompanist, Hubert Giesen, whose concern were the hundreds who had to be turned away from their Cleveland concert.

A little later, around the dinner table, one could not help wondering at the amazing simplicity of this genius. In whispers his accompanist tells how sometimes in sheer bravado they take most difficult music at double speed for their own amusement, and how Yehudi accomplishes these stunts with absolute nonchalance. Father Menuhin tells of the 8:30 bed hour, of the five languages his son must speak as routine each day, of his mother tongue, Palestinian Hebrew, and English, German, French and Italian. And all the while this charming youngster, oblivious to the fact that he is the subject of conversation, takes his poached egg, his cottage cheese and milk.

A fair-haired Saxon he seems rather than the off-spring of Judah. Large wondering eyes and sensitive nostrils. A happy smile when one mentions his teachers, for he is a hero worshiper of those like Persinger, Kneisco and Busch, who showed him the way to complete musicianship. His finely tapering fingers are slightly longer on his magical left hand than on the bowing right, both hands not yet fully grown and yet able to accomplish such wonders.

Brought up in sensible atmosphere, Yehudi not yet feels the fatigue of travel, and speaks of his coming concerts in the art centers of the world, in recital and with the most exacting orchestral conductors, with the same unconcern as if he had just prepared a spelling lesson and would recite it soon for his master.

Truly a phenomenon in this modern world!

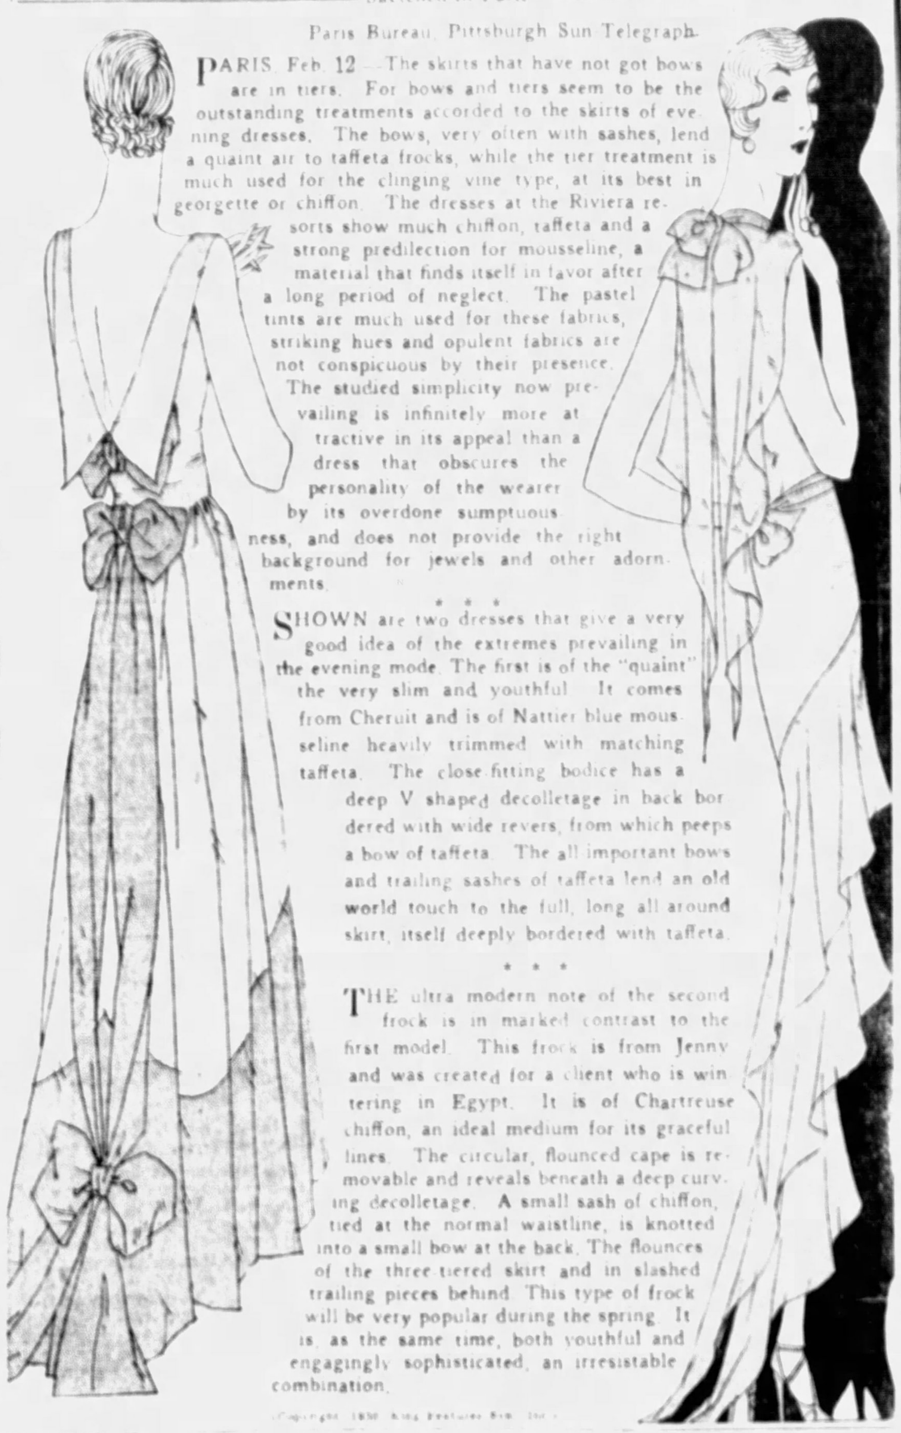
EVENING SKIRTS WITHOUT BOWS ARE NOW IN TIERS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.



PARIS, Feb. 12.—The skirts that have not got bows are in tiers. For bows and tiers seem to be the outstanding treatments accorded to the skirts of evening dresses. The bows, very often with sashes, lend a quaint air to taffeta frocks, while the tier treatment is much used for the clinging vine type, at its best in georgette or chiffon. The dresses at the Riviera resorts show much chiffon, taffeta and a strong predilection for mousseline, a material that finds itself in favor after a long period of neglect. The pastel tints are much used for these fabrics, striking hues and opulent fabrics are not conspicuous by their presence. The studied simplicity now prevailing is infinitely more attractive in its appeal than a dress that obscures the personality of the wearer by its overdone sumptuousness, and does not provide the right background for jewels and other adornments.

SHOWN are two dresses that give a very good idea of the extremes prevailing in the evening mode. The first is of the "quaint" the very slim and youthful. It comes from Cheruit and is of Nattier blue mousseline heavily trimmed with matching taffeta. The close-fitting bodice has a deep V shaped decolletage in back bordered with wide revers, from which peeps a bow of taffeta. The all important bows and trailing sashes of taffeta lend an old world touch to the full, long all around skirt, itself deeply bordered with taffeta.

* * *

THE ultra modern note of the second frock is in marked contrast to the first model. This frock is from Jenny and was created for a client who is wintering in Egypt. It is of Chartreuse chiffon, an ideal medium for its graceful lines. The circular, flounced cape is removable and reveals beneath a deep curving decolletage. A small sash of chiffon, tied at the normal waistline, is knotted into a small bow at the back. The flounces of the three-tiered skirt and in slashed trailing pieces behind. This type of frock will be very popular during the spring. It is, as the same time, both youthful and engagingly sophisticated, an irresistable combination.

CHICKIE

By Elenore Meherin

...mother was not a thing herself along. She gave up her own life and all her dreams. You know all that poetry she wrote when she was teaching school and she wanted to write? Then she got married and had all of us. I always thought she was trying to fool herself into being glad about losing so much. Now I know she meant it all and she was glad, glad as could be.

"She'd call, go through every bit of it again. You know, Chickie, when Jimmy comes in and puts his arms around mother and gives her a kiss, I bet that's worth a million dollars to her. She just looks at Jimmy and her eyes get all full. They seem to shout: 'You're my very own. My son!' I can imagine how she feels. She thinks Jimmy is the grandest thing on the earth.

Chickie said with her heart stabbing, "Oh, Mary, you're in love with Edward McPike."

"Yes, I love him."

Chickie wanted to press her face against Mary's arm. She tried to hold back the swift tears that all at once flashed through her. Oh, she loved Mary as though Mary were her own sister. From the time they were eight or nine they had been chums. Now Mary spoke this a thing to...how Mary was going to...the warping drudgery of...And all their bright, happy companionship was ended.

And this...Edward McPike would do this to Mary.

Chickie was suddenly relentless being the wondrous romances she and Mary had woven together. How they would each marry some one handsome some one with just a little money. And they would have bungalows next together with garages and gardens. They would go on picnics together.

Oh, there would be none of that now. Mary would have to push; she would look for a cheap flat; buy furniture on the installment plan.... Oh, it was a shame.

Suddenly she felt Mary's trembling hand. Mary's nervous words. "Oh, I know what you're thinking about, Chickie. But you don't know. You can't judge things by the outside. You can't ever know what Edward is, Chickie. He has a soul. I can't tell you how I feel."

Chickie was almost in tears. "Yes, yes, I bet. You are going to marry Edward?"

"Soon."

"Oh, you'll have it hard like Lucy."

Mary's face grew tense. "I don't care. I won't. Anyway, I'd like to suffer for Edward. I love him like that. That's what love means. Oh, Chickie, it's like the whole world bursting all at once into flower. I want to laugh and cry and, oh, I don't know what to do. I feel all melting sometimes."

A week after this Mary said to Chickie, "Edward is going away. He wants me to marry him and go, too. So I will. We won't have any wedding, only you and Jimmy and mother."

"When?"

"Tuesday."

"So soon." And not in a veil—oh, Mary."

"Those things don't count."

They went at twilight to the little church. Jimmy and Chickie were inside waiting before the small altar. Chickie's heart thumped with a curious pain. Her eyes kept brimming.

Jimmy watched her with an intent, eager glance. Abruptly he stepped behind, reached down and pressed her hand. His own was like ice. She heard his voice, so hoarse it frightened her.

"Chickie, say, Chickie, if it was only you and I."

Her heart, twisted with the shock, Jimmy's head was lowered. She could feel his breath.

"Chickie, I wish we were getting married. Could we?"

He held her hand so hard as though he would hold her soul [illegible] "Say, Chickie, why—oh!"

She saw his white face and his dear boy's mouth that it had an awful look of pain. She answered, pretending to laugh. "Ho! got the ring, Jimmy darling."

He turned his back sharply.

Mary came. She wore two beautiful orchids. Her dark face had a high, proud look of haunting sweetness.

At the words "for better or worse," Chickie saw her eyes close, her breath pause. She heard her answer with a quiet exaltation, "For better or worse."

Jimmy heard it, too.

He walked down the aisle with Chickie, walked slowly, tightening his hand on her arm, so that she might keep pace with him. Edward and Mary reached the vestibule.

They were but halfway down the aisle. Jimmy stopped her. He leaned down and said, pleading, "Chickie, I love you, like that, like Mary loves. Why don't you take me?"

And his face was near to hers and all alive with a white pleading tenderness. His eyes held her. As long as she lived she remembered that asking look, terrible in its humility, like a prayer in Jimmy's dear, honest eyes.

Fay King Reveals Interesting Rules for Correct Gum Chewing

By FAY KING

WE ALL have some pet ideal which we believe if we had the means and power to set into successful motion would benefit humanity.

Yet while dreaming of this we all do countless little things which annoy and cause extra work for others.

For instance, think of the damage and displeasure carelessly discarded gum causes.

Gum comes wrapped in a neat bit of paper. This you toss away. Later when you discard the gum without wrapping, it does much damage.

Save the wrapper in your pocket or purse and then discard your gum in it.

You get a large package of paper napkins for a dime. A few of these carried with you would solve the gum problem for you and others.

The Guest Prize

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Last night I attended a bridge and shower for an acquaintance. The woman who had won high score at bridge and won the prize presented that prize to the bride-to-be. Was that the proper thing for her to do? I think it was not. I believe that the hostess should have had a guest prize for the guest of honor, but as she didn't it looked to me as if the lady who won the prize was putting the hostess in a bad light. This lady had already given our friend a shower gift.

B. B.

I AGREE with you. The woman who won the prize should have kept it. And it was not necessary to have a guest prize for the guest of honor.

Solving the Soup Spoon Problem

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Please tell me whether or not it is proper to lift the bouillon cup to the lips or should one use a spoon only? A few weeks ago I attended a dinner, at which time cream soup, rather thick but clear, was served. I drank mine from the cup, but the majority just used a spoon. Toward the end I always find it hard to get the soup out of a cup with a spoon.

H. J. B.

THERE are several questions and answers involved in the one question that you set forth. The first is that if it is really bouillon that is served in bouillon cups then we may after we have tested the heat of the bouillon by the first few sips from the spoon drink the clear soup from the bouillon cup.

But and this is the next question, if the soup is as you say it was on this occasion a cream soup then to be correct we should not drink it, but should eat it with the spoon as we would any other cream soup.

I agree with you and this is another question involved about the inadequacy and inappropriateness of most of the spoons that we have placed with the various kinds of soup containers. This fact has been remedied of late by the increasingly popular cream soup cup and the cream soup spoon which has lately been designed to use with the cream soup cup. In other words, in very large measure nowadays we find that the cream soup cup is being used for

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

When Is a Home NOT a Home?

NOBODY will deny that the HOME is the world's greatest institution.

To some men it is a hotel, to some a hospital, to some an asylum, and to some a reformatory. And if those aren't "institutions," what ARE they?

Lots of society men are merely transient guests in their homes, dropping in only to eat, sleep, shave and change from their tweeds or their golf-knickers into their evening clothes. Occasionally they meet their wives who have just returned from Florida and are packing up for Paris.

Other men regard "home" as a rest cure or a sanitarium, where they can go to be nursed, when they are too ill or fagged out to go anywhere else, and can linger until they get back on their feet and can get OUT again.

* * *

In such a home it is merely a matter of treading softly, muffling the bells, suppressing the children and listening to "symptoms" until the Good Provider can get "back to the office" and begin again to "slave for the things that make the wife and family happy."

* * *

Then, there is the Home Reformatory, which a man enters all unsuspectingly, when he is under the anesthetic of love, and, where he wakes up after the honeymoon, to discover that the little woman married him in order to reform, remodel and "improve" him—in everything from his cravats and his grammar, to his table manners and his pet habits.

The husband in such a home feels like a "suspect" or a "trusty" constantly under observation and subject to punishment or reprimand every time he indulges in free speech or unwittingly breaks a "rule."

Or, it may be the wife who is being uplifted and remodeled. Some men and women are born reformers, and, when they find that they can't run the rest of the world, they take it out on the hapless creature they married, and thus vindicate themselves.

Finally, there is the asylum-home, where the Man-of-the-house is regarded as "harmless" but not quite responsible, where nobody takes him seriously, and where he is treated only as a sort of necessary evil, which has to be endured around the place.

* * *

Even a well-regulated home is too often just an "institution," where a man discovers that everything is going to be run on a schedule, and where he is aroused by an alarm clock, expected to show up on the dot for dinner, and has the lights turned out on him at 10 p. m.

* * *

When is a home NOT a home? When it's an "institution" which is only too often.

That's why so many men and women spend their days wondering how they "got INTO it"—and devising ways and means to get OUT of it.

* * *

Four walls and a lot of mahogany furniture never made a HOME. It takes three to make a home, the man, the woman and plenty of love.

NOT SO DUMB

By HELEN KLUMPH

From Marion Davies' forthcoming All-Talking Picture by Wanda Tuchok and Edwin Justus Mayer, based on the play, Dulcy, by Marc Connelly and George Kaufman.

CHAPTER IX

THERE were moments when Gordon thought that dinner would never come to an end. He hardly noticed the gleaming silver, the opalescent glass, the delicate pink rosebuds and blue gentians that were but a parody of the exquisite tint of Dulcy's skin and eyes. He only knew that he was too far away from her to hear all that she was saying.

Once he took heart when Forbes attacked his souffle with evident enjoyment, but his spirits went down again when he caught a few words of what Dulcy was saying.

And I always say that Gordon takes his business much too seriously," she was assuring Forbes.

He couldn't catch any more. But he hoped, he even prayed, that she wasn't telling Forbes about the time she neglected to give him the telephone message summoning him to an important business conference.

On that never to be forgotten occasion she had planned to go to the theater and she reasoned that it would do him much more good to enjoy a show than to go to a dull old directors' meeting.

"A game is only a game," he heard her saying a little later. "So I don't see why he allowed himself to get so upset when I trumped his ace."

Gordon was relieved when she had stopped talking about business, but he wished that she would stop talking entirely. If Dulcy only knew how alluring, how irresistible, she was when she kept still.

Bill relaxed from his moody, silent study of Angela and Vincent long enough to cut in on Dulcy's blithe monologue.

Appetite Spoiled

"Tell Mr. Forbes," he suggested sardonically, "about the time you wanted the minister to join in a game of Blind Man's Buff just after a bootlegger had blacked his eye. Mr. Forbes hasn't heard anything yet."

Something seemed to have spoiled Forbes' appetite.

"You must eat to live," Dulcy assured him laughingly.

She insisted on helping him to a large, heavily-iced piece of pastry over his protests that he never ate sweets.

Bill's observation that perhaps he would prefer not to live was luckily not heard, and Gordon greeted with relief the general exodus from the table. He hurried after Dulcy to the living room, he must caution her to let Forbes alone before the others came in.

Isn't it wonderful?" Dulcy asked excitedly.

Gordon looked at her in amazement. Was it possible that she didn't realize what she was doing? She looked so lovely, so elated there in the misty darkness that he felt as though he were about to take candy from a child.

"Sweetheart, please be careful what you say to Mr. Forbes," he pleaded gently.

But such a little pin prick wasn't enough to deflate the balloon of Dulcy's enthusiasm.

Amusing Sight

"Isn't it amusing, Gordie, the way Mrs. Forbes is flirting with Van Dyke?" she asked delightedly, as she fluttered about the room switching on lamps.

"That's just what I wanted to warn you about."

"And my plan about Angela is working beautifully," she interrupted. "Vincent is just mad about her. Anyone at the table could have seen it."

Gordon was so solemn! Impulsively Dulcy rushed over and kissed him. Eluding his arms she whispered significantly, "Just leave everything to me!"

Before he could stop her she had gone to the door to see what was delaying the others, and Gordon realized that he faced defeat. He wished that he didn't love Dulcy, wished that he didn't understand all the foolish mistakes she made and love her for them. He wished that he hated her, because then he could strangle her and keep her from doing any more damage to his business. But without Dulcy he wouldn't care if he had any business or not. Without Dulcy he wouldn't even want to live!

"Never mind, old man," Bill came up consolingly, "you'll get used to Dulcy after a while. That is, if you live through tonight."

Dulcy seemed to be under the impression that everyone was having a good time. A sublime contentment radiated from her, though Forbes stood immovable, glowering first at his wife, who was deeply absorbed in what Van Dyke was saying to her, and then at his daughter, who was edging toward the porch with Vincent.

Cuts Off View

"Oh, Mr. Forbes, I'll never forgive my butler for spilling that wine on you."

In her deep concern Dulcy planted herself directly in front of him, cutting off his view of his wife.

"It doesn't matter," he whined despairingly. "Nothing matters any more."

Angela seized his momentary distraction as an opportunity to slip out on the terrace, quickly followed by Vincent. And a moment later Dulcy switched on all the lights in the room, so that even their shadows were no longer visible.

Only once during a lull Vincent's voice could be heard declaiming, "You're like a wonderful warm dawn, just your magic presence—" and Forbes' shudder was hardly more noticeable than Bill's.

"I always say I love a big house and lots of company," Dulcy prattled on, drowning out all sound from outside. "If it were only a winter night we could gather around the fireplace and tell ghost stories."

Forbes Protests

No one seemed to welcome that suggestion, so Dulcy busied herself with pouring the coffee, and Forbes looked around for a chair that was as far away from her as possible. A good stiff chair that would support his aching back.

"Oh, no, Mr. Forbes," she protested, as she handed him a cup. "You must take the easy chair."

His protests were drowned out in her insistence, and Gordon's attempts to signal her to lay off were unavailing.

"Not a word," Dulcy warned him playfully. "I know you're polite and want to leave it for me, but I insist on your having it. I wouldn't dream of anyone else having it but you. Now sit right down in it, that's right. Way back. It's awfully comfortable, just the thing after eating."

As usual Dulcy was doing her best with the worst possible results.

Forbes sat down defiantly, with the air of a man who yields in a minor battle only that he may concentrate his forces on the big struggle to come.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Nightmare Caused By Improper Eating or Emotional Strain

DID you ever wake up with a start, believing you had just fallen from the haymow or out of the cherry tree? Such an experience is unpleasant, leaving you with an "all-gone" feeling.

DR. COPELAND

The physiology of sleep is still incompletely understood. Progress is being made in unraveling its mysteries. Only recently new theories regarding it have been advanced.

Nightmares are apt to occur only at rare intervals. Usually they may be traced to some emotional strain or to acute indigestion. It is quite possible that dreams are influenced by the quality and quantity of blood which reaches the thought centers in the brain during sleep.

Improper eating is a common cause for dreams of all sorts. Sometimes school duties prey on the mind of a child, and if this is so the daily work gets mixed up in the dreams. The studies should be lightened. Any other fear or worry should be removed, if possible.

An impressionable child should not be told or read exciting bedtime stories. Neither should he be treated to exciting play just before going to bed. All kinds of excitement late in the day should be avoided. It must be remembered that any intense nervous strain is liable to bring bad dreams or nightmare.

It is important that the young child should have a definite and regular bedtime hour. He should have regular meals and be kept from indigestible food.

It is a good thing to have a nervous child, one given to bad dreams, sleep near older persons in the household. I do not mean he should sleep in the same bed with somebody else. If at all possible to arrange it, every child should have a separate bed.

Over fatigue and excitement of any sort react on the sensitive nervous system of a young child. We are not doing our duty toward the growing child unless we make sure there is plenty of restful sleep. Everything that interferes with his rest should be removed.

Adenoids very often are accompanied by bad dreams. This condition interferes with proper breathing. See your doctor and have the adenoids removed at his direction.

Nothing is better for the nerves than simple, nourishing food, plenty of fresh air and sunshine, good physical care and mental harmony are the rights of childhood. Watch your growing child and see that he gets all these. His later years will show the good results of early care and training in the right habits of living.

How Ford Methods Cut Cost of Distribution

Lower profits in selling save you at least $50 to $75 in addition to the many savings in manufacturing

TWENTY-SEVEN years ago the Ford Motor Company was formed to provide reliable, economical transportation for all the people. That original purpose has never changed. The constant effort in every activity is to find ways to give you greater and greater value without extra cost—frequently at lowered cost. This applies to distribution and similar important factors, as well as manufacture.

For the Ford Motor Company believes that its full duty is not only to make a good automobile at the lowest possible price, but to see that there is no waste, extravagance, or undue profit in any transaction from the time the car leaves the factory until it is delivered to your home. It is obvious that hard-won savings in production will be of little value if they are sacrificed later through excessive selling costs.

EVERY purchaser of a motor car has the right to know how much of the money he pays is for the car itself and how much is taken up by dealer charges. If these charges are too high, one of two things must happen. Either the price of the car must be raised or the quality lowered. There is no other way. The money must come from somewhere.

In the case of the Ford, the low charges for distribution, selling, financing and accessories mean a saving of at least $50 to $75 to every purchaser in addition to the still greater savings made possible by economies in manufacturing. Ford charges are not marked up or increased to cover a high trade-in allowance on a used car.

The profit margin on the Ford car has always been fair to both the dealer and the public. Within the past three months, it has been possible to effect still further economies. Today, the discount or commission of the Ford dealer is the lowest of any automobile dealer. The difference, ranging from 25% to nearly 50%, comes right off the price you pay for the car.

THE business of the Ford dealer is good because he makes a small profit on a large number of sales instead of a large profit on fewer sales. He knows, too, that the extra dollar-for-dollar value of the car makes it easier to sell and more certain to give satisfactory service after purchase.

Consider also that the Ford car is delivered to the purchaser equipped with a Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, an extra steel-spoke wheel, and bright, enduring Rustless Steel for many exterior metal parts, in addition to four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers and fully enclosed four-wheel brakes.

If for any reason you wish to buy certain small accessories, you will find that these, too, are sold at the usual Ford low prices. Replacement parts are also available at low prices through Ford dealers in every section of the country.

THESE are important points to remember in considering the purchase of a motor car. They show why it is possible to put so much extra quality into the new Ford and still maintain the low price. They are also the reasons why more than 35% of all cars sold today are Model A Fords.

Outcasts

ONCE it was not so hard to say "Good night,"
A few slow hours and then another meeting.
Life was a carnival of sheer delight,
Love was a sweet adventure worth repeating.

We took no heed of what would follow after,
We felt so certain bliss had come to stay.
Shadowy streets re-echoed to our laughter,
We were so young, so arrogant, so gay.

Carnivals close, not stop to give a reason,
Even the gayest laughter dies at last;
There is an end to every magic season,
There is a time when sorrow joins the cast.

Now when we meet on any sullen day
What can we do but look, then look away?

THE perfect service at the Algonquin Hotel in New York was never better exemplified than [illegible] when Sylvia Sydney [illegible] lunched there [illegible] with a will chum. As they were mopping down the last drops of java out of their saucers some [illegible] they knew wandered in and [illegible] at their table.

During the conversation Sylvia said to the lad: "Oh, you're a sap." Whereupon the youth reached for the water carafe. The ever-present head waiter beat him to it and said: "Do you wish some water, sir?"

No, replied the boy. "I wanted to hit the young lady."

"But pardon, sir," said the head waiter as he handed the chap the carafe.

TEE-HEE

Page 221 of "Men, Marriage and Me," by Peggy Joyce, has this to say: "Mr. Winchell has always been very wonderful to me so I am always glad to have him for dinner, because I have a very deep feeling for that boy.

"Is my face red?"

THE COMEBACK PROPER

Nunc Silverman and Charles F. Zittel, editors of rival theatrical trade papers, haven't talked for decades, which is a good preface to this paragraph. Pausing in Chicago the other midnight on a tour to the coast, Silverman frequented Texas Guinan's asylum and Miss G., ever on the alert to kid a kidder, shouted to Silverman: "Howya, Zit?"

Two hours later, after supping and joy-juicing it, Silverman called for the check, signed Zit's name on the back of it and left town.

ORIGIN?

The query "How did 'O. K.' originate is up again" and the following explanation is the most interesting of several submitted. It appears that there once was a freight agent named Obediah Kelly connected with a railroad. He was a particular person when he went over the bills of lading and always signed his initials. Because of his reputation for accuracy the phrase became famous all over the railroad. "Is it signed by O. K.?" asked the others and the expression spread, so that Obediah's initials are perpetuated as meaning "all right."

HOW EMBARRASSING

One of the things a dramatic critic learns quickly is that the word "great" should never be used on a play or player if it can be helped. There is always the possibility of seeing your "great" show carted off to the storehouse in a week. It has happened, you know. It is also dangerous to say of an actor: He isn't the type for such and such a role."

A few years ago when a show named "Seed of the Brute" opened a critic said of Robert Ames, the star: "In the early scenes as the youth, Ames was convincing but later as the father of a grown son it was difficult to believe his part. He isn't the type for paternal roles."

The next night in a cafe the reviewer was pointed out to Mr. Ames who immediately went over to introduce himself to the critic and at the same time introduced the oracle to his 18-year-old son.

STEW STUFF

Beatrice Lillie's husband, Lord Peel, was visiting a sportsman whose apartment walls are crowded with English sporting prints. Lord Peel, who had been gargling giggle water for hours, was absorbed by a picture of a horse race. The host was curious. "Peels, old boy," he said, "why have you been staring so long at that one picture?"

"Oh," pouted Peel between hiccoughs, "that jockey in purple isn't even trying."

GOODNESS!

Jack Benny telegraphs that during his travels west he discovered a vaudeville theater still open in Duluth.

AS IF WE DIDN'T KNOW

Take it from Philip R. Davis who commutes to New York from Chicago: among other great scenes in Manhattan are those at the Grand Central and Pennsylvania stations on a Saturday morning when musical shows leave town.

After the rattlers pull out with their cargo of chorus girls armfu[illegible] of [illegible] leave the depots wea[illegible] the tongue from their lips.

INFEWER WORDS

And according to G. Piltonia, the London Naval Conference will be known to posterity as the farce that launched a thousand quips.

POOR FELLER

It really happened in the [illegible] rial rooms of a local tailoring the other afternoon. A curly headed, pimply-faced adolescent walked up to the city desk and applied for a job.

"Have you had any previous newspaper experience?" he was queried.

"Nope," he hoped, between gulps, "but I was editor of our school magazine."

"Oh, I'm so sorry," was the cruel retort. "But we've got an editor."

Sigrid Onegin Sings In Concert Tonight

Now on his first American visit, Mme. Onegin will give three arias, opening with "La Clemenza di Tito," by Mozart. The other two are Rossini's aria from "La Cenerentola" and Verdi's "Ordon Fatale" from "Don Carlos." In addition to the arias, two love songs by Masenet, and songs by Mendelssohn and Schumann will be included, as well as a group of three English songs, two of which are by Pittsburgh composers, Harvey B. Gaul and Mamanna L. Geniet.

FOX RULING DUE TOMORROW

NEW YORK, Feb. 12. (INS)—After attorneys for stockholders of the Fox Film Corporation had registered opposition to the reorganization plan proposed for the corporation, Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman adjourned the hearing until 3:15 tomorrow. At that time Judge Coleman said definite steps will be taken either to reject the plan or adopt it.

Samuel Untermeyer, as counsel for Fox, proposed a $65,000,000 financing plan.

Lawrence Berenson, as attorney for the stockholders, opposed the refinancing plan as too costly to the stockholders.

He maintained the company could dispose of assets sufficient to meet the present need of [illegible]. He pointed out the West Coast theaters, recently [illegible] by the Fox Corporation at 80, providing over $50,000,000 additional. This would be favorable to the stockholders, he thought, even if carried out under a receivership.

In answer Untermeyer said that it was the intention of the plan to keep the holdings of the company intact, and that the Fox Film Corporation had earned over $2,000,000 in the last four weeks, and that the West Coast theaters, which had been bought for $20,000,000, originally had earned $5,000,000 last year, and were earning currently at the rate of $7,000,000.

OLD BEFORE HER TIME

Nervous Breakdown Changes Pretty Young Wife Into Pitiable Invalid.

Mrs. J. Lupo, of McKeesport, Pa., who has now entirely recovered her health and happiness, tells her astonishing experience in the following letter:

"I was reared in the country, ate eggs and butter, moved to town. I was always a picture of health. We had good, plain food, mostly grown right on our own place—not the canned and packaged substitutes some town people have to put up with. They call such things food but it seems to me that all the life-giving power of real food is lost from some of them in the factories and packing houses where they are canned or manufactured. Shortly after we moved to town I was married. I was happy for a little while, but a few years of living here, as the food and climate did not agree with me, weakened my nervous system. I had terrible headaches, followed by sleepless nights, when I would toss and toss in pain. I grew thinner and weaker each day. I would break out in sudden perspiration, without any reason at all. My hands trembled so bad I quitted my food when I tried to eat.

"Naturally, my married life was a failure. I could not give my good husband the love he craved and deserved. Black doubts and fears took hold of my mind. I became suspicious of every one. I distrusted even my own husband and falsely imagined he was unfaithful. It was he who saved me when everything was at its worst. One night he brought home a bottle of World's Tonic—the new remedy compounded from roots and herbs grown in their natural state and gathered from different parts of the world. I was better after the first dose. The wonderful powers of natural plants are preserved in World's Tonic. I continued taking it and at the end of six weeks I was well again like I had been in the country. Our married life is now happier than I ever dreamed it could be. I owe it all to World's Tonic."

World's Tonic is on sale at Boyce's, Nace & Liggett's, Meffert's and other modern drug stores. (A 70)

Two old rivals of the basketball court come together at the South Side Market House tonight when the Goldensons entertain the Fintex quintet in the only Allegheny County League attraction on the schedule. Both teams are in the running for the second half championship of the County League and cannot afford to lose a decision at this stage of the season. The Fintex team fresh from its victory over the champion Duquesne Lafayettes will be eager to chase a jinx of long standing by defeating the Goldensons. The Market House floor for years has been a hoodoo for the Fintex passers.

GOLDENSONS CONFIDENT

The Goldensons, showing improved form since the opening of the second half schedule, feel confident they will take the measure of the Fintex quintet. Their only defeat in the second round of play came at the hands of the Fintex passers and they will make an effort to even that score tonight. Followers of the two clubs are looking for a close battle tonight.

In the preliminary contest the Goldenson Vanities undefeated in 15 straight games will meet the Latrobe Pirates, one of the best clubs in Westmoreland County. The two clubs will play under boys' rules using only five players. Tonight's contest marks the first time girls have played the style of basketball at the Market House.

CHAMPS MEET K. OF C.

The Duquesne Lafayettes County League champions face another hard test tonight when they invade New Kensington to meet the Knights of Columbus on the high school floor. The Kaceys have met and defeated some of the strongest teams in the district during the last three years and they are eager to add the County Leaguers to their list of victims. Dr. Richard Dick Goldberg, former Pitt star, will handle the contest.

Two games were waged in the County League last night, the Veronas tripping the Elizabeth Club 49 to 30 and the Duquesne Lafayettes beating the Charleroi Lions 29 to 25.

The Schneiders were routed out by the Knickerbockers 21 to 20 in the West Penn League and Potter Title and Trust set down P. A. L. E. 36 to 33 and Carnegie also downed Dixie 40 to 23 in the C. A. L. loop.

INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S GOLF PLANS SHAPED

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Feb. 12.—(AP.)—Miss Glenna Collett, four times woman golf champion, who stopped off here en route from a vacation downstate to New York to play an exhibition match with the Pastel brothers and Miss Virginia Van Wie, announced some of the details of the first international women's matches to be played abroad during the spring.

Miss Collett said she had received a letter from Miss Mollie Gourlay, English closed champion and French open titleholder, in which the latter suggested a series of matches between the women players of the United States and Britain about May 12.

Miss Gourlay explained she had consented to act as captain of the British team at the request of Miss Joyce Wethered, who is withdrawing from competitive golf this year.

While Miss Collett would not commit herself regarding the plan suggested by Miss Gourlay, she announced she would within a fortnight know definitely since she has spoken to a number of American girls about the prospects of the international series and they are enthusiastic.

JOYCE WETHERED QUITS

LONDON, Feb. 12.—(AP.)—Joyce Wethered, holder of the British woman's golf championship today stated that she will not defend her title at Formby in May and furthermore that she has finished with championship play altogether.

The retirement of this first-time holder of the British championship comes at the comparatively early age of 28, but it is known that for some time she felt she was faced with too difficult a task in keeping up the standard of play expected of her by the golfing public.

In addition to Miss Wethered's retirement, it also was stated in authoritative golfing circles today that Cecil Leitch, long one of England's leading woman golfers, will not again be seen in premier championship play.

C. Walsh was born in Greenfield.

He will be buried on Friday from the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Nora M. Grath, 410 Allen [illegible], where Mrs. Walsh and he have been living this winter. Services will be held at 9 a. m. in St. Cajetan's Roman Catholic Church, with interment in Calvary Cemetery.

Walsh gained a name for himself on championships for his splendid [illegible] playing winning quite consistently. His deliberate play made him a notable figure among his less deliberate fellow professionals. A modest, unassuming chap, Walsh had a wide circle of friends in Pittsburgh.

grab the job away from Dick Bartell, and the other candidates Charlie started for the Memphis club last season and in Southern Association circles is regarded as a brilliant player. Boss Ens wants to get intimate with the style of this lad of whom he has heard so much good.

Sattler has had scant experience, but his appearance is all in his favor. He is that type of shortstop that gives all the veterans a real thrill when he goes after a ball. He has the manner and style of a star fielder but his hitting is in question.

Sattler came out of the Southeastern League and naturally will have to show a lot of class to be retained this year, even in the role of a utility player.

MOLESWORTH "FIND"

Young a Piedmont League sensation, was pitched by Scout Carleton Molesworth, than whom there are few better judges of baseball nuggets in the first stage. Moley, it is recalled, nabbed Rollo Hemsley out of the wilds of the Blue Ridge League and if that young man watches himself he will not have to bow to any catcher in the league.

Young is a combination infielder and outfielder, but he is so green that he will have to be shown many things, nevertheless the conservative Molesworth is ready to rave about the youngster and that much action on the part of the scout is enough to convince the Pittsburgh officials that the recruit should get a lot of attention.

Among the other stars were Buck Freeman, famous home run hitter; Mike Donlin, the slugging outfielder; Cy Seymour, equally as good; Lou Criger, one of the smartest catchers of all time, and the incomparable Iron Man of the mound, Joe McGinnity.

Comiskey Returns To Reinstate Shires

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—(AP.)—The Old Roman, Charles A. Comiskey of the White Sox, was due back in club headquarters tonight to settle his difficulties with Charles Arthur "The Gray" Shires.

With his arrival from Florida, Comiskey is expected to lift the fighting first baseman's suspension and then mail him a contract for the 1930 season.

Shires was suspended last summer for striking the then manager, Russell "Lena" Blackburne. Although he has no more troubles to settle with Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis, Shires must be restored to good order in the White Sox before a contract is signed.

For the first time since the disbanding of the Five Griffith Brothers of Pittsburgh, Western Pennsylvania boasts a basketball team composed entirely of brothers in the Five Sullivan Brothers of Homestead. The lineup is composed of Joe and Charles at forwards, Tom at center and Bill and Gene at guards. In two games played so far, the brothers have defeated the West Homestead Firemen, 32-29, and the Sargent Club, 28-17. Because two of the younger boys are members of the Homestead High School team, the brothers have suspended operations until after the school season closes. The boys are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sullivan, 412 Eighth avenue, Homestead. Their father appears in the picture with them.

Long's Sport Comment

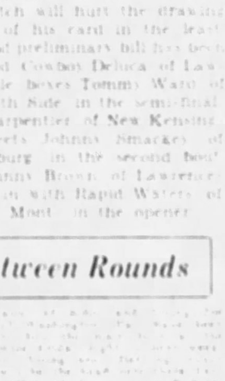
club has since boosted the offer to $15,000, but at his home in Greensboro, N. C., yesterday, Terrell said he had sent back two contracts unsigned. Reports say he wants $5,000 more than he has been offered, which is taken to mean that he has set his figure at $20,000.

IN explanation of the sudden decision of the Yankee management to part with Leo Durocher, who has been sold to the Reds, it is said that the young infielder talked himself out of the American League. The Yankee contract tendered to Durocher contained a provisional clause, he wasn't to get the full amount unless he did so and so, probably in the batting department.

Durocher rushed immediately from his Bronx apartment to Yankee headquarters, on the shoe goes and unleashed so much language upon Ed Barrow in protest that it was decided to get rid of him. But even though Barrow tired of listening, that doesn't explain how seven other American League clubs were induced to waive on Durocher. The minor leagues must have given Leo the old trap-door route.



Glenna Collett

GOLF experts are now trying to figure how much farther Miss Glenna Collett can go, and whether or not she will have a chance to rival or surpass in women's competition the record made in men's golf by Bobby Jones. She is only 27 and has a long stretch of competitive seasons ahead of her, but Harry Soloing-er, for one, estimates that the equaling of Jones' mark is beyond her powers. Miss Collett has four women's United States championships to her credit, more than any other American girl ever captured, but Jones has won more than twice as many major titles and besides has divided his triumphs between this country and Great Britain, whereas all of Miss Collett's victories have been scored on this side of the Atlantic. She may have a chance to win in England this year, since Miss Joyce Wethered says she will not compete, but at that she will have a fling at only two national titles, while Jones will be privileged to try for four. The schedule of women's major tournaments does not afford as many opportunities as does the annual program for men players. That fact alone appears sufficient to prevent Miss Collett from ever equaling Jones' record.

STILL they fall. Another big house and another soft mark for Primo Carnera. The Italian giant's fourth American success in stopping somebody called Buster Martin in the second round at St. Louis last night only confirmed the general opinion that in ruling out Tiny Roebuck and allowing Martin to be substituted the boxing powers there merely made things easier for Carnera.

In a speech here last week, Chairman Frank Weiner, of the Pennsylvania commission, declared that Primo will not be permitted to box in this state unless he consents to meet worthy opponent. Following that lead, the Illinois commission has ruled that he cannot fight in Chicago again unless he agrees to box George Godfrey. It is high time for other states to fall in line. Nobody can fairly object to Carnera's picking up all the money he can possibly earn along sportsmanlike lines, but he ought to be made to do it against real fighters.

[illegible] Tommy Crawley, local lightweight, got off to a good start in his campaign in the East by beating Young Fullerton at Jersey City Monday night. This win should set him a lot of work in those parts.

[illegible] Harry Spencer, local middleweight, is campaigning on the Washington, Pa., Hempfield [illegible] an operation for appendicitis performed last Monday.

Campbell, Wyant Earnings Lower

CHICAGO, Feb. 12 — Net income of Campbell, Wyant & Cannon Foundry Company in 1929 was about $1,277,000, equivalent to slightly over $3.65 a share on 348,000 shares of no par common stock, according to M. H. Bent, a director. In 1928 Campbell, Wyant had net income of $1,574,309, equivalent to $4.99 a share on 315,000 shares.

Present indications are that first-quarter sales and profits will at least equal those of a year ago, when first-quarter net was $475,600 or $1.51 a share on stock outstanding, said Mr. Bent. Last year the company spent $1,400,000 on new plant, and benefits from this expenditure will be reflected in 1930 earnings.

Foreign Demand For Copper Higher

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 — Foreign buying of copper during the current month has been in greater volume than for the same period of January. It is estimated that since February 1 the total copper engaged for shipment abroad amounts to approximately 31,500,000 pounds, sales of copper Monday for export reached 4,500,000 pounds and estimates place initial sales yesterday at about 1,800,000 pounds. Price is strong at 18.50 cents a pound C. I. F. European ports.

In domestic dealings business was quieter than last week due perhaps to the nearness of the publication of statistics covering the month of January. Sales, however, are being made daily and the price is firmly held at 18 cents a pound delivered Connecticut valley.

Crude Oil Output Higher for Week

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 — (AP) — Daily average gross crude oil production in the United States increased 18,800 barrels for the week ended February 8, totaling 2,613,800 barrels, according to the weekly summary of the American Petroleum Institute. Daily average production east of California was 1,905,900 barrels, an increase of 21,500 barrels.

MUTUAL LIFE ASSETS GAIN

The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York during 1929 established its highest yearly record in volume of new business written, and on December 31, 1929, the total of insurance upon its books was $4,298,774,546.

During 1929 the company paid $46,265,026 in death claims, including double indemnity claims, $5,982,470 for matured endowments, $1,627,251 under annuities, $2,354,896 as income under income settlement provisions under policies, $2,633,105 under disability provisions and $43,361,991 in dividends.

On December 31, 1929, the company's assets were $990,954,923.61 and its liabilities excluding contingency reserve were $926,053,330.85. The gain in assets was $63,617,644.09.

The contingency reserve (surplus) on December 31, 1929, was $62,849,592.76.

The company believes the future prospects for life insurance are very bright. During the last few years the public has gained a much clearer understanding of life insurance value and use.

Standard Plate Asks Note Extension

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE noteholders' protective committee of the Standard Plate Glass Company has appealed to holders of the $3,000,000 6 per cent notes due on March 1 to accept payment for 75 per cent of their holdings in cash and to grant an extension of six months for the payment of the remaining 25 per cent.

Under the plan the company will also pay the interest due on March 1 and the extended portion of the notes will bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent. The committee states that the company will not be in a position to meet its obligations unless 75 per cent of the note holders agree to the extension.

The Bank of Pittsburgh N. A. has been named as depository for the committee, which consists of S. B. Congdon, James D. Chambers, G. C. Watt and W. B. Purvis. T. H. Eddy is secretary. The committee states that the company appears to have made a sincere effort to meet its obligations to noteholders and the opinion is expressed by the officers that they can meet the full amount of the notes if a reasonable time is given.

Has $2,250,000 Available

OFFICERS of the company expect to have $2,250,000 available for distribution to noteholders on March 1, the date of maturity. This is equivalent to 75 per cent of the face amount of the notes together with interest for the six month period coming to a close. After paying this amount the company will have left a net working capital of about $400,000.

The company owns a plate glass manufacturing plant at Butler which, together with a gas producing and gathering property furnishing the fuel supply, was valued at $4,350,284 by the American Appraisal Company in 1923 and which is now carried on the books at $3,097,452. The company also owns a modern warehouse in Cambridge, Mass., purchased in 1923 at a cost of $419,715 and the site of its abandoned plant at Springdale, which is appraised by competent real estate men at $425,000. There are no other encumbrances on these properties.

May Sell Properties

THE committee did not state how the company intends to raise the money to meet the extended portion of the notes, but it is generally believed that attempts will be made to dispose of the portion of these properties which is not essential to the production of glass.

Recently the paint business of the company with a plant on the North Side was sold to H. K. Watson and his associates for a substantial sum. The warehouse at Youngstown was sold to the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company. Other warehouses at Boston, Buffalo and Cincinnati are being closed down. Operations of most warehouses are believed to have been unprofitable so that the liquidation will result in a saving in expenses and the sale of inventories will add to cash.

Business At Loss

DUE to reductions in prices following severe foreign competition, the company's operations have been at a loss for the past three years and for five years the preferred dividend requirements have not been earned. Dividends are in arrears on both the preferred and prior preference stocks.

In the first nine months of 1929 a net loss of $290,579 was shown. This compared with a loss of $346,564 in the corresponding period of 1928. In the full year of 1928 the company lost $490,374, compared with a loss of $517,510 in 1927.

The company has been endeavoring to meet current competitive conditions by improving production facilities. The abandonment of the Springdale plant was followed by modernization work at Butler which increased capacity at that plant to an output equal to the former capacities of both plants and which resulted in lower production costs.

No. 6—Exchange Temporary Certificates For Permanent Securities

PRACTICALLY all securities bought by original subscription are delivered in the first instance in form of Temporary Certificates.

This holds true for both stocks and bonds and there are many reasons why this practice is necessary.

Temporary Certificates for securities in many instances are held by investors for several months before they are exchangeable for definitive securities, at which time arrangements generally must be made through a banker to forward Temporary Certificates under registered insured mail to effect exchange.

Through failure to receive notice, negligence, absence or sickness, these exchanges are often delayed, thereby causing loss through failure to promptly collect income and interest when due.

The inconveniences attendant upon exchange of Temporary Certificates, together with possible losses involved, are eliminated for the prudent investor who takes advantage of the security custodian arrangement available at this institution.

Developments Lincoln Would Like—and Dislike

By B. C. FORBES

LINCOLN would indorse at least some of our economic, financial, industrial and social developments since his day.

In line with his innate democracy have been the great spread of wealth and the rise in the living standards of his "common people," the notable increase in home ownership, the phenomenal spread of security ownership to a total representing almost four out of every five families, the accumulation of more than $28,000,000,000 mostly by ordinary folks, in savings accounts, the marked reduction in working hours and the consequent increase in the people's leisure, the rise in the number of pupils in schools and students in universities to the present total of 27,400,000; the capture of almost all the richest prizes in life by men born into neither wealth nor influence; the widespread movement among large employers to make provision for the sickness and old age of toilers.

Could he pass judgment on conditions of the moment, he would be more pained by the extent of unemployment than probably anything else, and by the utter lack of co-ordinated, nationwide effort to meet the lamentable condition of those unable to earn their daily bread.

A SUGGESTION: Those at present out of work include not only manual laborers, artisans, clerks and other rank-and-file workers, but perhaps a larger number than ever before of men who have held responsible positions paying anywhere from $5,000 to $25,000 and more a year. Most companies have machinery for handling seekers of ordinary jobs, but in many establishments there is no prescribed course for gaining the ear of a high-up by salaried men in search of work.

Of course, busy executives perhaps could not attend properly to their own duties were they to give up much of their time to audiences with applicants for highly-paid positions. But abnormal conditions now prevail, and executives who have been fortunate enough not to have been dropped because of consolidations, dullness or other reasons, should stretch a point to show consideration to victims of the economic revolution now under way.

Many men accustomed to handling responsibilities, and accustomed to earning five-figured salaries, are not only willing but eager to make new connections at half their former remuneration.

Friends who are large-hearted enough to devote unselfish effort to placing men of the calibre here described complain that too often executives appeared to have acted most brusquely and inconsiderately. A plea is here made for a more humane attitude.

Could you picture Lincoln acting rudely or callously towards an honest man seeking honest employment?

APROPOS of living-and-letting-live, here is something new. A New York Church has set up a goodwill court. Once a week three judges, selected for their fitness to deal with the particular type of cases to be heard, will sit to hear and settle employment disputes, social differences, business and financial troubles, and "mental conflicts." No charge will be made.

Facts were given here the other day about New York's arbitration tribunal and its settlement of 344 business disputes last year. This church (John Haynes Holmes Community Church) is carrying the conciliation idea into wider fields. Doesn't the idea impress you as possessing worthwhile possibilities?

CHICAGO'S financial embarrassment should be relieved forthwith.

If the second city in the United States is permitted to continue much longer in dire financial straits unable to pay policemen, firemen and other municipal servants and unable to keep schools, hospitals and other civic institutions functioning normally, there is danger that municipal bondholders not only in Chicago, but throughout the country, may become apprehensive and start selling. They may reason that if the great city of Chicago can fall into such a bankrupt state, unpleasant developments might easily occur in cities of lesser wealth.

The Chicago situation possesses not merely local but national interest and seriousness. It is all very well to play politics up to a certain point, but when politics threatens to play havoc with confidence in municipal bonds, of which billions are outstanding throughout the country and many millions have constantly to be marketed, it high time to call a halt. The menace is sufficiently grave and far-reaching in its potentialities to warrant attention from President Hoover.

Much more could be said, but it should not be necessary.

IF the stock market is foolish enough to attempt to run uphill at breakneck speed, it is certain to suffer a fall.

Markets Closed For Lincoln's Birthday

CHANGE IN GULF STEEL HINTED

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 12.—Despite conflicting reports, it is believed in this district that C. S. Eaton and associates have obtained a controlling interest in the Gulf States Steel Company, of Birmingham, Ala. E. T. McCleary, president of the Republic Iron and Steel Company, declined to comment.

From reliable sources it is indicated that Otis & Co., Cleveland investment house, has been accumulating Gulf States common stock on the open market and has acquired an interest which, with that of their associates, gives them working control of the company.

American Tobacco 1930 Prospects Held Good By Wall Street

COMMENTING on the recent market activity in American Tobacco, Wall Street interests point out that the outlook for the company this year is bright. The report of the company for 1929 to be published in March will show net income of about $30,000,000. Earnings for 1929 do not afford a fair indication of the earning power for 1930. On the basis of estimated rate of production at the close of 1929 the 35 cent additional to be received by manufacturers after discounts through the price advance means additional income for American Tobacco of approximately $15,000,000 or about $6.50 a share on the combined common.

Long pull buying has been noted in National Cash Register whenever the stock has been reactionary. Considerable outside demand has developed at times, but some traders have been selling the stock on the theory that less favorable business conditions might affect the company's business. However, the introduction of new products, coupled with the apparent expansion in the foreign business of National, is expected to offset any decrease in the regular domestic lines, so that the prospects favor continued growth in earnings.

NEW interest is being shown in Mullins Body. The company is benefiting from the increase in automobile production, but much is expected from the new lines of manufacture. These include household radiator covers, which are coming into more extensive use and of which the company is one of the largest, if not the largest maker. In addition, the demand for the company's boats for outboard motors has been exceeding expectations of the management. This is particularly true of the volume of orders taken following the motor boat show in this city several weeks ago. The stock sells at a low price, and has been attracting a good-sized public following.

The belief that Canadian Pacific Railway is limited by certain charter provisions in respect to the dividend which it can pay on its common stock has existed rather generally for some time. This, however, is not the case. There is no statutory or other restriction on the Canadian Pacific in respect to dividend distribution on its common shares. Company, is in this respect, in the same position as other corporations, and is permitted to distribute by way of dividend as much of its net earnings as directors may determine. Currently selling around 225, the common stock yields 4.4 per cent on its $10 annual dividend. When the par of the stock is reduced to $25, from $100, effecting a four-for-one splitup, the new stock will receive $2.50 annually in dividends, since directors stated no change in dividend rate was contemplated at present.

RUMOR has it that Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Inland Steel may combine. While there may be no foundation to such reports a merger of the two companies would be logical. There is no water in either company. Both were built from the ground up. Every dollar put into the two companies was put there to earn something. No companies were taken over at inflated prices. Y. S. & T. and Inland are both low-cost producers and complete units and operated by people who know the steel business from A to Z.

Stockholders of the Otis Elevator Company have voted to increase the authorized common stock to 2,500,000 shares from 500,000 shares. The new stock is to be no par as compared with $50 par for the present shares. The increase is to provide stock for a four for one split up of present shares, entailing the issuance of 2,000,000 new shares. The remaining unissued 500,000 shares will be held for future use.

Wabash to Issue $17,867,000 Bonds

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. The Wabash Railroad today asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue $17,867,000 of refunding and general mortgage 4½ per cent gold bonds.

At the same time the road asked the commission to modify its previous order in order to permit it to pledge 177,000 shares of the common capital stock of the Lehigh Valley Railroad as collateral security for short time notes. The Wabash said that it had purchased this stock for the purpose of protecting its position in the eastern trunk line situation.

Winnipeg Grain Market.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 12. Grain prices slipped back slightly today at the opening of the Winnipeg exchange, due presumably to a reaction to the continued rise for the last few days. Wheat was easy to 1c down, at $1.28½ to $1.28¾. July oats were off at $1.20¼ to $1.20½, and further ½c to 1c lower at $1.29¼ to $1.29½.

While you dear mother rest and sleep
Your loving memory we will always keep.

DAILY TRUE STORY

He Knew Men

"IF THERE is one thing that I know," said the Hon Cyrus Mallard

"—— It is how to size up men" finished Phyllis Mallard.

But the Honorable Cyrus, her father, did not hear this Phyllis was out on the sun porch reading. Phyllis had murmured the finish to her father's statement while he had finished it in his booming voice in the library to his visitor, the Reverend Halsted.

Phyllis did not mean any particular impertinence to her honored sire, only she had heard this phrase so often from him that it sometimes bored her.

Cyrus Mallard saw his daughter on the sun porch. He raised his voice a little which was not lost on Phyllis.

"And so when I met Joseph Whitley I knew at once that here was a most estimable man —thoroughly trustworthy, kindly just and always alert. In fact he is the sort of a man I hope to always have with me."

Phyllis started off into the syringa bush and wondered if her father would finally marriage to marry her off to Joseph Whitley who walked as though he wore paint on shoulder braces and smiled as though he were doing it against his better judgment.

"It is a great and valuable faculty, Brother Mallard" said the clergyman "to be able to thus judge your fellow man. Few of us are able to do it."

"It has helped me immeasurably especially in my profession."

Cyrus Mallard always referred to banking as a profession. He was president of the Springton bank.

Three months before this Joseph Whitley ran come to Mr. Mallard with letters of reference from the big city letters from executives in two banks where Mr. Mallard was somewhat acquainted.

Cyrus Mallard was a keen man—no doubt of this.

Placed in Bank

"It is seldom" he said to Whitley, "that a young man leaves a big city institution for a smaller one in a suburban town. The chances for advancement are not so great."

"That is quite true in a way," Whitley had replied. "Yet in the bank where I was located two sons and a nephew of high executives were pushed ahead of me——"

"Most reprehensible" stormed Mr. Mallard.

"However another object was to get into a country town where living conditions are healthier and the people more agreeable." Whitley went on.

Mr. Mallard found a place in the bank for him. He had sized him up at once as a thoroughly reliable young man.

At the end of the second month Cyrus Mallard was boasting of his insight into human nature. He had never had a more efficient young man in the bank. Then it was that he began to think of Whitley as a son-in-law.

Mallard wanted his daughter Phyllis to be happy. He had been widowed many years and was desirous of marrying again. He did not want to do this until Phyllis was first happily married. He feared that Phyllis would not be happy if he brought home a second wife. To do him credit he intended to be quite sure that Phyllis was married to the right man.

However, he did not believe that his daughter had inherited his insight, his ability to judge men, and so he intended to do the selecting of a husband for her quite by himself.

Phyllis suspected this.

She knew a score of young men, rather nice chaps some of them rather jolly boy friends. Not one of them had ever stirred within her a desire to marry.

At the same time she couldn't see Joseph Whitley to use her own words. Her father had him at dinner quite often. Young Mr. Whitley was respectful, a good talker and made every effort to please, but Phyllis had already told herself that her father was going to be very much up against it if he tried to make her marry this chap.

Then she met Wallace Parker at the Country Club.

He had been in town only a week or so. He came from New York and was visiting Mrs. Lang, his aunt.

They played a twosome they came back for the weekly dance at the club that evening and when he left her at home that night Phyllis knew that he was "different." She suspected that she was going to fall in love with him, but wouldn't admit that she already had done so.

Happy Pair

Wallace Parker liked Springton and its people. He decided to stay on through the summer. He had his car there and he got admittance to the club. He also opened a moderate little account at the bank.

A couple of weeks of constant playing together made both Phyllis and Wallace very happy. At the same time it disturbed the Honorable Mallard greatly.

"Who is this young chap you are about with so much?" he asked his daughter.

Phyllis told him.

"Yes, but who are his people in New York? What is his background?

"I don't know his people. I know that Mrs. Lang is a mighty nice woman and she is his aunt. Suppose you ask her about him, Dad?"

"M-m-m well, but I hate to see you wasting your time with this sort of young man. He isn't the type, the sort to ever get anywhere in life. If there is one thing I know it is how to size up men!"

"Everything Wallace does is wonderful—the way he rides, and drives and swims, and the big handicap he has given to me in golf.

Swim a ride golf. Is that a life career for a young man? I ask you.

Ask him that. I've never questioned him about it," Phyllis said.

Her father decided to investigate. He had to do so. Mrs. Lang was delighted.

Wallace is my sister's boy and he's a fine young man she told Mr. Mallard.

Yes, yes, no doubt. Er what does he do his profession or business?

Why he has some financial interests. I've never asked what they are. Mrs. Lang told him.

The Honorable Cyrus Mallard thanked Mrs. Lang and went his way thoroughly unsatisfied. She was far too vague and a young man wouldn't have many financial interests that he could see.

Joseph Whitley was brought to the Mallard home to dinner more often.

Uncanny Ability

Mr. Mallard informed Phyllis that he had again been studying the young man.

You know my dear of my uncanny ability to judge men and I tell you that this young man has no mind on anything other than having a good time. He may have financial interests as his aunt says but he seems woefully ignorant of financial matters. It isn't that he just is the sort who will never make good."

Phyllis listened.

He has made good with me Dad. I like him better than any other man I know.

Phyllis laughed kissed her father and went up to her room. When the time came Phyllis intended to marry Wallace Parker. She hoped her father would consent. She would be sorry if he didn't, but the marriage would take place. She and Wallace had threshed that all out together.

More weeks passed before Cyrus Mallard brought up the subject again. He had asked Phyllis to have the young man over to dinner. He intimated that he wanted to study him some more.

At the close of the dinner Mr. Mallard said:

"Young man I never beat about the bush. I wanted to know about you because my daughter seemed interested in you. I find that you often go to the Sweeney place a notorious bootlegging dive.

Oh yes, sir" Wallace admitted.

And I find that you have been secretly meeting two questionable characters men of New York's underworld who have both served time.

Quite right Mr. Mallard. I know the men you seem to have in mind."

Phyllis Surprised

"It strikes me that this proves you to be the sort of man I cannot permit to associate with my daughter, Parker.

Phyllis was white but silent.

Phyllis is the one to decide Wallace Parker said quietly.

He arose thanked the Honorable Cyrus Mallard for his hospitality, shook hands with Phyllis and said: "If you are so inclined my dear we'll keep our appointment at the club for the foursome."

I'll be there" Phyllis promised.

After Parker left her father did not raise his voice, but he said: "You will not keep that appointment. I told you that chap was worthless. I have had a detective watching him. I could tell you more."

That night Mr. Joseph Whitley and two assistants were arrested at the Sweeney place. Whitley had two big suitcases full of money. The money was from Mr. Mallard's bank.

Mallard was sent for. He found Wallace Parker at headquarters.

So you were one of them, eh?" Mallard said. I knew it."

"Mr. Parker" said Chief Dawson, "is from a private detective agency, maintained by New York bankers. He has known for months that this man you call Joseph Whitley who is really 'Slim' Judson was going to clean your bank."

"Nonsense!" snapped Mallard.

"After Judson did his bit he was trailed here and I was sent on Mr. Mallard. I stole his letters of recommendation and they were forged. We got two crooks Judson had used before we have a way to do those things. I was on hand at Sweeney's place to greet your nice young Mr. Whitley when he arrived with all the money and negotiable paper in your bank. In the future it would be best to investigate any letters of recommendation from strange young men."

Phyllis and Wallace played their foursome the next forenoon.

Later Wallace came back to Springton.

And to this day the Honorable Cyrus Mallard has the nerve to say: "Yes sir, this son-in-law of mine, Wallace Parker, is an ideal husband for Phyllis. I knew it the moment I saw him if there is one thing I know it is men."

Hughes Appointment Ill-Considered; His Confirmation Would Be Unfortunate

Mr. Charles Evans Hughes is doubtless a "great and good man," but we believe his appointment to the office of Chief Justice of the United States was ill considered and that his confirmation would be unfortunate and long regretted.

We do not undervalue the conspicuous public service of Mr. Hughes—his effective investigation of the life insurance companies, his independence of boss control while governor of New York, his industry and ability during the five years he served as an Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court and the adequacy with which he filled the high office of Secretary of State. Nor are we unmindful that a lifetime devoted to the teaching as well as the practice of law, in which unusual aptitude has been re enforced by close application, has brought him distinguished professional recognition.

The objections to Mr. Hughes as a Chief Justice of the United States lie quite outside of these considerations. They were justly expressed by Senator Norris, of Nebraska, in the Senate.

"They resolve themselves," said Senator Norris, "into two fundamental reasons why his appointment is unwise.

"First, Mr. Hughes resigned from the Supreme Court to become a candidate for President. After his ambitions in the political field have failed of realization, he is not only reappointed to the Supreme Court but promoted to Chief Justice

"I concede a judge has a right to leave the judiciary and enter political life. But he ought not to be, by political power, put back again on the bench which he voluntarily left.

"Carried to its logical conclusions it will mean judges who desire to follow the course pursued by Mr. Hughes will be influenced to disregard justice in rendering their decisions and cater to the wish of politicians in power.

"Second, we have reached a time in our history when the power and influence of monopoly and organized wealth are reaching into every governmental activity.

"Perhaps it is not far amiss to say no man in public life so exemplifies the influence of powerful combinations in the political and financial world as does Mr. Hughes."

We regard these objections as final and conclusive. Certainly they cannot be ignored or brushed aside.

The Supreme Court of the United States under the constitutional definition of its function and in the light of our history, for over one hundred and forty years, is "the holy of holies" of our system of government.

The highest, ultimate, and most absolute standards are the only ones to be observed or which have application in the appointment of the members of this august tribunal. It is the last refuge and defense of the American citizen against the arrogance of power, the usurpations of privilege, the shortcomings of his elected representatives, and the injustice ofttimes of the law itself. It is the sentinel which guards the Constitution, and all our rights and immunities thereunder.

Its Chief Justice, no less than every member of the court, must be above the suspicion of bias or prepossession, whether conscious or involuntary, on the great public questions which come before him for decision, and above all things, he must be a man with nothing in his record to suggest the taint of politics in his rise to this incomparable post of trust and honor.

Opium Bloc Is Favored By League of Nations

If the American people had any illusions about the sincerity of the League of Nations efforts to abolish the opium traffic, those illusions are now gone forever. Last week at the Geneva opium conference, the League unmasked itself—and showed the glaring inconsistency between its PRETENSES and its PURPOSES.

The League of Nations we have been told a million times in the last 10 years, exists to make this world a paradise. It exists to banish war forever. To abolish the white slave traffic, to gentle the tigers of the earth, to give heart to all the little woolly lambs, to dispense justice everywhere to the weak and to the strong, the savage and the uncivilized, the conquerors and the conquered.

It has done none of these things. It was never intended by its creators to be THAT kind of League. It was created to maintain the injustices and inequalities of the same so-called peace treaty signed at Versailles in 1919. That treaty sowed the seeds of war and hatred in every corner of the earth. It tore nations to pieces, set up artificial governments, made colonies of proud native races and invented the League of Nations to guard and preserve these mad iniquities.

Were the Americans so foolish as to believe that such a League sincerely wishes to put an end forever to the traffic in narcotics? If they were, they need believe it no longer. Let them consider what the League of Nations' advisory committee on the opium traffic did at Geneva.

The members of that committee met and talked for three weeks. Then they retired to a conference chamber and drew up a report. It is a high sounding set of recommendations for the control of the international traffic in narcotics. Read over and you come across many fine phrases, many regulations for estimating the amount of narcotics required by each nation, definite suggestions for the regulation of the manufacture of narcotics.

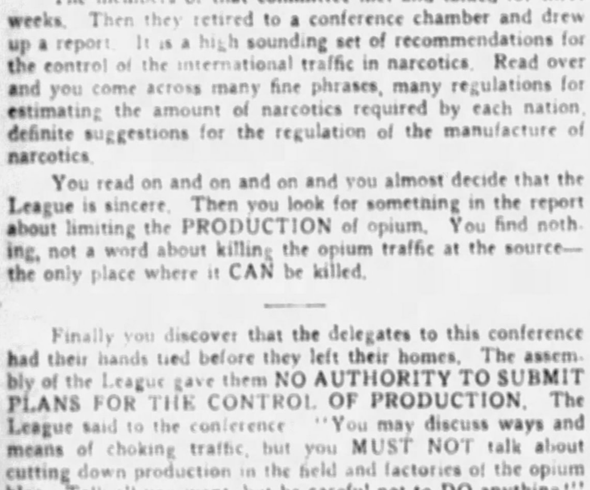
You read on and on and on and you almost decide that the League is sincere. Then you look for something in the report about limiting the PRODUCTION of opium. You find nothing, not a word about killing the opium traffic at the source—the only place where it CAN be killed.

Finally you discover that the delegates to this conference had their hands tied before they left their homes. The assembly of the League gave them NO AUTHORITY TO SUBMIT PLANS FOR THE CONTROL OF PRODUCTION. The League said to the conference: "You may discuss ways and means of choking traffic, but you MUST NOT talk about cutting down production in the field and factories of the opium bloc. Talk all you want, but be careful not to DO anything!"

Well, the conference has obeyed its instructions. The League of Nations has remained true to the opium bloc. It has kept faith with its members who produce opium and debauch the world for the sake of filthy profits. It has spoken fair words and approved foul deeds—and yet there are human beings of such blindness or effrontery that they ask the American people to join such a League as THAT!

Oldest Married Couple

Happy, Although Married 80 Years.



MR. AND MRS. NADOSY, OF HUNGARY, HOLDERS OF THE MARRIED LONG-TIME RECORD.

This couple (they do not look so VERY old), had lived together as man and wife for 80 years when this photograph was taken.

The man, Laszlo Nadosy, is 105, his wife 102 years old.

Hungarians, still residing in their native land, and working on the land, in the Hungarian peasant costume, they are quite satisfied with what life has given them.

They never had an automobile, a vacuum cleaner, a radio set, a tractor, a piano able to play itself, or an electric washing machine.

They are in good health, own a piece of ground, know how to cultivate it, believe that they will go to heaven when they are through with this earth and continue to be happy there.

Many a man with a ten thousand dollar automobile, and a ten million dollar bank account might envy them.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Nifty Prizes

NEW YORK will offer $100 for arrest and jugging of any hit-and-run driver who gets his man before joining the Canadian Northwest Mounted.

There should be second prize for the ambulance crew that drives up in time to qualify as the fanciest dressed couple.

Third prize "Bugs" Baer should go to the victim for the most comical capers while making a perfect three-point landing on his angelic shoulder blades.

The bump-and-scoot drivers have been winning all the elimination tournaments in the big cities for the last 15 seasons. That's why New York will add another cash prize for the pedestrian who discovers parking space wide enough for picnic ants to march four abreast.

A medal of congressional disgust will go to the backseat driver who catches the most United States mail bags on her outstretched hand.

Honorable mention will be given to the village traffic cop who gives out the most direction with the least information.

Instead of slipping subpoenas to holiday drivers the motorcycle police will give forth diplomas and allow the driver's wife to make the graduating address.

The chauffeur who gets sideswiped on a gradecrossing will not only be voted the most popular member of the congregation but he will also retain the moving picture rights.

Don't Hit a Tack With a Trip-Hammer

By Herbert Kaufman

DESPERATION cannot pause to SPLIT HAIRS; crisis must be met with the ablest instrumentalities that emergency affords.

Thus, dynamite is used to check the spread of an extraordinary conflagration. The fact that SOME structures within the wrecked area may be unnecessarily destroyed in the process, is unfortunate, but UNPREVENTABLE.

War cannot be waged without a given percentage of non-COMBATANT fatalities. Wherever the clock takes arbitrary command of military or CIVIC maneuvers institutions and individuals, caught in the line of fire, are apt to be numbered with OBJECTIVE victims.

The conviction of Ruth St. Claire, just condemned to life imprisonment for shoplifting, aptly illustrates such a situation.

The Baumes Act, under which Judge Levine was PROTESTINGLY compelled to impose this capital penalty, intended its drastic provisions only to discourage crimes of VIOLENCE.

THE Baumes Act was invoked for the very reason that MARTIAL law is declared—to meet an extremity with which MODERATION could not cope.

There are times when society is FORCED to fight terrorism with terrorism—brutality with brutality. The outlaw creates the vigilante.

A national police system, suddenly found ineffective against gangsters operating in high-power automobiles and armed with machine guns, stink bombs and smoke screens, daily demonstrated its impotence to halt the epidemic of assaults, killings and kidnapings, which were being staged even on crowded streets and in the hearts of every metropolis.

A Camorra of hired assassins and blackmailers was rooting and flourishing. Crooked politicians, bribe-taking officials and greedy legal eminence were rapidly taking service in the organization.

And these dirty pick-locks were daily blocking retributive action.

Citizens finally lost faith in the integrity of the courts themselves and demanded, from the arsenals of authority, some weapon which could not be deflected by WARD-BOSS influence or academic TECHNICALITY.

The Baumes Act was so designed. But it was essentially designed for crimes against the PERSON, not crimes against PROPERTY.

Legislation did not plan to revive the barbaric codes that once categoried counterfeiting, forgery, poaching and pocket-picking as gallows offenses.

It did not weave this unbreakable net for picaroons, weaklings, milk-bottle raiders, or poor, drug-crazed wastrels who might occasionally loot a store counter.

THE St. Claire conviction won't STAND. The judge who pronounced sentence pleads for its REVERSAL. District Attorney Crain denounces the inappropriate verdict. And the united press of Manhattan insists upon executive interference.

Ruth St. Claire shan't join the lifer colony at Sing Sing and the Baumes Act will never commit ANY other shoplifter to expiate behind bars to her last hour.

The Baumes Act will be AMENDED—just as the Volstead Act will be amended—to conform with REASON and ENLIGHTENMENT.

The punishment that does not fit the crime is an unworthy servant of discipline and at cross-purposes with the humane and logical moods of progress.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

IN nearly all fungi the essential living thing is a web of delicate threads, burrowing inconspicuously into the material upon which it thrives.

H. G. Wells

The most conspicuous parts are the spore-bearing structures. In the common toadstools and puff-balls and mushrooms, for example, the umbrella or globe or hat with which we are familiar is not the whole plant any more than an apple or a blackberry is a whole plant; it is merely the fructification, the spore-producing organ, and the essential living thing from which it sprouts is a white, silken web that creeps and digests unseen in the rich soil below.

The "mushroom spawn" from which edible mushrooms are grown consists of lumps of richly manured soil with this living web in it. And even a mushroom with its definite shape is not so firmly built as the body of a higher plant.

There is no brick-laying, so to speak, of its component cells; instead of the cells being mortared together into a solid mass, it consists of an interlacement of separate hypha-strands, like a hut of interwoven branches instead of a brick house.

On the whole, the fungi, like the arthropods, are malignant towards mankind. Many of the parasitic forms cause havoc among cultivated plants.

The rust, smut and bunt of wheat, the diseases of potatoes, sugar-canes and larches, the destructive mildews of roses and hops and grapes—these and many other plant plagues are due to moulds parasitic in the tissue of the sufferers.

A few attack our own bodies, producing ringworm and other itching affections of the skin and hair—even in civilized countries moudly children are quite common.

The saprophytic forms may be troublesome, too; there is, for example, the dry rot that undermines our buildings, as there are the moulds that spoil our food. In favor of the fungi it may be said that they are among Nature's undertakers, helping in the decay and disintegration of dead things, and that one or two of them have edible, even delicious fructifications. But this scarcely balances the evil they do.

There is, however, a group of organisms, the yeasts, which play an important part in human economy and are highly valuable to us. They differ in structure from other fungi and stand in an order apart. Their chemical reactions are distinctive and extraordinary.

They are single-celled moulds; they thrive on various organic matters and they are cultivated because of their residues, their chemical excretions, of which the most important ingredients are carbon dioxide and alcohol.

Yeast, as it is usually purchased, is a moist powder. Every granule of that powder is a microscopic globule of life. An ounce of brewer's yeast contains about five thousand million of them.

It has been known since the dawn of history that if dough is left about for a time before it is baked, the resulting bread is quite different from the unleavened bread produced by baking the dough as soon as it is mixed.

And it was known, too, that a little unbaked dough which had already fermented, leaven that is, if it was mixed with newly-made dough, leavened the whole lump. But it was reserved for Pasteur to make these facts intelligible.

The leavening of bread is due solely to yeast; it nourishes itself on the bread and the changes produced are manifestations of its life—the most important being that the carbon dioxide it releases gives the bread its light, frothy, aerated consistency.

Again, if fruit juices are left undisturbed for a time they undergo changes of flavor and become alcoholic.

This also is due to the action of yeasts (of other organisms, too, but chiefly yeasts), which live on the sugar in the juice and produce alcohol and carbon dioxide.

If the liquor is bottled while it is still raw the carbon dioxide remains able to escape, dissolves under pressure and a sparkling drink is produced. If not, the carbon dioxide escapes and a still wine or beer or cider results.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—A prosperous New York racketeer declares his most fruitful sucker list is a copy of that carefully selected volume "Who's Who." Those who grace its pages know little of flim-flamming and are often easily trapped by what is known as the "toney racket."

The Social Register is also full of "pay dirt" along with lists of art patrons. This winter has seen an army of petty telephone racketeers who inspire terror by telephone calls of a mysterious nature. Nearly every writer of my acquaintance has been given a buzz.

The formula is to implant suspicion of some hideous and impending scandal. The stranger may telephone he overhead a conversation in a Broadway cafe that involves the intended victim. "I don't know you" explains the voice "but I know your friends and you are in danger."

To the most innocent of persons this is more than likely to cause worry. If he displays fear over the 'phone he is marked. Later there will be other telephone calls and as a general thing a meeting is arranged to talk things over and see what can be done.

The interview proves extremely vague. There is inference some scandal-monging journal has a tip the prospect has "been seen with a blonde." The publication of such rumors may be stopped for a small sum—say from $50 to $100.

It is so fishy that in the light of cold reason it is absurd. Men and often women selected for shake downs know they are being robbed but the amount is so small they would rather pay it than face a few days of needless anxiety.

The truth is no publication is going to scandalize a person without first talking to them about it. This applies even to scurrilous journals. The law of libel has too many sharp teeth for that. The proper method of handling such telephone calls is to hang up in their ear.

There are in New York three pseudo publications that make a living by extortion. They are as a matter of fact never printed but occupy offices that have an editorial camouflage. The method is to have a libelous story in type and a proof sent to the prospect. Generally he is scared silly and pays the price.
